LEA AND PERRINS' celebrated
WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE, declared by connoisseurs to be
THE ONLY GOOD SAUCE.

CAUTION AGAINST FRAUD.
The success of this most delicious and unrivalled Condiment having caused certain dealers to apply the name of "Worcestershire Sauce" to their own inferior compounds, the public is hereby informed that the only way to secure the genuine is to and to see that their names are upon the wrapper, labels, stopper, and bottle.
Some of the foreign markets having been supplied with a spurious Worcestershire Sauce, upon the wrapper and labels of which the names of Lea and Perrins have been forged, L. and P. give notice that they have furnished their correspondents with power-of-attorney to take instant proceedings against manufacturers and vendors of such, or any other imitations by which their right may be infringed.
Ask for LEA and PERRINS' Sauce, and see Name on Wrapper, Label, Bottle, and Stopper.

SITTINGS FOR THE TRIAL OF CAUSES.
BANCO COURT.
BEFORE his Honor the CHIEF JUSTICE and a jury of four.

HARRISKY V. SCHOFIELD.

Defendant's case was opened, but was not concluded when the Court rose.

JURY COURT.
Before his Honor Mr. Justice FAUCETT and a jury of four.

BOWMAN V. MACANSH.

Defendant's case was continued. One witness was examined, and the examination of a second witness was commenced when the Court rose.

JURORS.—We have been requested to state that the jurors in the Banco Court, with the exception of those sworn in the case of Harrisky v. Schofield, will not be required to attend until Wednesday morning.

COURT OF QUARTER SESSIONS.

MONDAY.
BEFORE District Court Judge SIMPSON and a jury of twelve.
Mr. W. J. Foster prosecuted on behalf of the Crown.

PLEADED GUILTY.

The following prisoners pleaded guilty, and were remanded for sentence:—Hugh Moore, false pretences; Charles Smith, false pretences; William Read, stealing from a dwelling (three charges); Thomas Ridley, false pretences (three charges); and John M'Kenzie, alias John White, alias John Thompson, stealing.

STEALING A WATCH.

William Turley was charged with stealing a watch, the property of John Clarke. He pleaded not guilty. The evidence was to the effect that on the 28th June detective Lyons arrested prisoner, and asked him if he had a watch in his possession. Prisoner replied in the negative, and Lyons then asked him what he had done with a watch he had some time ago. Prisoner denied that he had a watch. He was, however, proved to have sold the watch for 10s. to Samuel Tyrrell, watchmaker, of Pitt-street. The watch was previously in the possession of prosecutor (who is a watchmaker) for repairs, and while it was in his custody on the 22nd of June he put it in the show-case. On the following Wednesday it had disappeared, and was subsequently traced to prisoner's possession, as already described.

Prisoner handed in a statement in which he affirmed that on the 28th June he was down at the Grafton Wharf in search of work, and while returning home picked the watch up in Sussex-street.

The jury, without retiring, returned a verdict of guilty. Prisoner was sentenced to three months' imprisonment.

FORGING AND UTTERING A CHEQUE.

Frank Carroll was charged with uttering a forged cheque. Prisoner was arrested by detective Lyons on the 15th of the present month, in a house at John-street, Woollahra, on a charge of uttering a forged cheque, on or about the 15th instant, to Alphonse Courvoisier. Prisoner denied the charge. On being searched, another cheque, signed J. H. Richardson, was found in prisoner's possession. Prosecutor deposed that he keeps Courvoisier's Hotel, in George-street. On the 5th instant prisoner came to his establishment about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and presented a cheque which he wished to have changed; prosecutor cashed the cheque, and on the following Monday, about half-past 9 o'clock, prisoner returned, and said "I have heard something about the cheque, but I will see about it," prosecutor then asked him to wait, as he was going to send the cheque to the bank, but prisoner said, "No, no," and went away; the cheque was afterwards presented at the Bank of New South Wales, and found to be worthless; the cheque purported to bear the signature of Thomas L. Murray. Evidence was also given that no such person as Thomas L. Murray lived at the Union Club (as represented by prisoner) on the date mentioned by him.

The accused called no evidence, but made a statement that he had received the cheque from a person named Murray, in part payment of a map which he (prisoner) was selling.

His HONOR summed up, and the jury, after some deliberation, found a verdict of guilty of uttering. Prisoner was not known previously to the police. Sentence—two years' imprisonment.

FALSE PRETENCES.

Alfred George Manthil was charged with obtaining goods by means of false pretences. He pleaded not guilty. The facts of the case, as brought out in the evidence of the principal witnesses for the Crown, were, briefly, that on the 2nd of June, prisoner went to the shop of Mr. Hughes's store, and told him that Messrs. Smythe and Wells wanted some starch. He represented himself as their agent, and asked the price of the goods. Having received information on that point, he went away and returned shortly afterwards, and ordered ten cases of starch, valued at £11. Evidence was also given of delivery of the goods, and that Messrs. Smythe and Wells never authorised prisoner to purchase in their behalf.

Prisoner, in his defence, addressed the jury at considerable length, mainly with a view to show that he purchased the starch on his own account, and did not lead prosecutor to believe that he was acting on behalf of Messrs. Smythe and Wells.

The jury, without leaving the box, brought in a verdict of guilty. Sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

Sarah Barry was charged with having, on the 5th instant, attempted to commit suicide. Prisoner, it appears, lived at a house in Sussex-street, occupied by a man named Watts, and, on the night of the 16th August, she had some words with a man who lodged at the same house, and went out saying that he would be sorry for what he had said. She then made her way down to the A. S. N. Co.'s wharf, got into a waterman's boat, and jumped into the water. Mr. Watts (a coloured man), the occupier of the house, stated that the man referred to asked him to follow her or she would jump into the water; Watts replied, "let her jump in;" they, however, followed prisoner, who jumped into the water, and was taken out in an insensible condition.

Prisoner, in reply to the charge, stated that she jumped into the water to frighten the friend with whom she had quarrelled, and had no intention of committing suicide.

Verdict—not guilty. Prisoner was discharged.

LARCENY.

William Patterson was arraigned upon two charges of stealing two pairs of trousers, two vests, and other articles of wearing apparel, the property of William Howes, clothier, King-street. Prisoner pleaded not guilty. It appeared that in the month of May last he was engaged as assistant in Mr. Howes's shop, and during that time various articles, the property of his employer, were missed, and were afterwards found to have been sold by prisoner to two persons, named respectively Thompson and Lomer. Prisoner was never authorised to dispose of the goods in the shop. The identity of the goods with those stolen from Mr. Howes's shop was proved by various witnesses engaged in prosecutor's shop.

Prisoner called evidence to prove that he had purchased goods similar to those alleged to have been stolen.

His HONOR having summed up, the jury, without retiring, returned a verdict of guilty. Sentence, twelve months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.

MONDAY.
BEFORE Mr. District Court Judge DOWLING.

DOUGLASS V. GOULTHORPES.

This was an action for goods sold and delivered, in which the plaintiff claimed £27 9s. 9d., balance of account. The defendant pleaded not indebted and payment. The account had been running since the year 1866, payments having been made occasionally, leaving the balance now sued for. The defendant had kept a small grocery store, and had been from time to time supplied with grocery and other stores by the plaintiff. The defendant being unable to support her case his Honor gave a verdict for the plaintiff for the amount claimed. Mr. S. R. Jones appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Henry Driver for the defendant.

WHITE V. JAMES.

This was an action for £10 10s. for negligence. The defendant pleaded not guilty and contributory negligence. From the evidence adduced for the plaintiff it appeared that a servant of the defendant was driving a cart along Bathurst-street towards Pitt-street, when a child of the plaintiff's, about three years old, crossing the street was knocked down by the wheel of the cart and injured so seriously as to require surgical attendance. It was alleged that at the time of the accident the man who was driving the cart was looking behind him instead of keeping a proper look-out for foot passengers. Plaintiff's wife proved that the defendant had promised to pay the expenses of medical attendance and nursing. Dr. Taylor, who attended the child, proved that the injuries inflicted had been very serious. It was argued by Mr. Roberts, on application for a nonsuit, that there had been contributory negligence on both the part of the "child" and the child's "parents," in allowing the child to run about the road, and that the defendant was on the right side of the street, driving with due carefulness when the accident happened. His Honor refused to nonsuit. From the evidence given by defendant's servant, it appeared that he could not have been keeping a very bright look out, as he did not know he had hurt the child for some time after the accident happened. His Honor was of opinion that in the form the action was brought, the plaintiff could only recover for medical and other attendance, and gave a verdict for £2 10s., without professional costs. Mr. Buchanan, instructed by Mr. S. R. Jones, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. W. Roberts for the defendant.

STEINBREUER AND ANOTHER V. O'NEILL.

The plaintiffs in this case—John Steinbreuer and Christina, his wife—sued the defendant, Julia O'Neill, for £30, damages for slander alleged to have been spoken of the plaintiff's wife on the 4th July last. The parties, as frequently happens in such cases, were neighbours, residing at Waterloo; the plaintiff being a tenant of the defendant, and the slander was spoken on the occasion of the defendant going on the plaintiff's premises about some repairs. A witness, named Davis, who was called for the defence, stated that plaintiff's wife was a very "troublesome person," and that the defendant had not spoken the words complained of. Defendant admitted that she had made a remark about the plaintiff's wife having stones in her hand, but denied the other allegations. Verdict for defendant, without costs. Mr. Gannon appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Pilcher, instructed by Mr. R. Forster, for the defendant.

INSOLVENCY COURT.

MONDAY.
BEFORE the CHIEF COMMISSIONER.

Mr. John Want moved that the order nisi in re the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney v. Norman and Alexander Campbell, granted on the 12th August, be made absolute. No objection being offered, the order was made absolute. Schedule and statement to be filed on or before the 30th August.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

MONDAY.
BEFORE the Mayor, and the Police Magistrate, with Messrs. Pearce, Murphy, Merriman, Smart, Charlton, and Levy.

Thirty-six persons were fined in sums, varying according to circumstances, from 5s. to 40s., on conviction of drunkenness or of riotous behaviour, or of using obscene language.

Sarah Jones, charged with being an idle and disorderly person, having no lawful visible means of support, was sentenced to be imprisoned six months.

John Thomas, a tall powerful man, was charged with having assaulted Peter Hemmings. Complainant, a coloured man, advanced in years and of diminutive stature, the overseer of the Soup Kitchen, deposed that on Sunday afternoon the defendant, who was the worse for liquor, came into his room where he was taking dinner, and seizing him by the neck dragged him into the yard, towards the copper, swearing that he would throw him into the copper and make soup of him; he had dragged him as far as the copper when two men interfered and rescued him from the prisoner's grasp. The Bench said, that under all the circumstances, this was a most cowardly assault, and regretted that they could not inflict a more severe punishment than two months' imprisonment. To be imprisoned two months.

Six prisoners were discharged and two were remanded.

On the summons paper were eight cases, of which two were dismissed and four were not prosecuted. Jenner v. Fletcher was a suit for wages in which an order was made for payment of the sum claimed; and M'Neill v. Wan was an undefended proceeding to obtain possession of premises situated at Kingston, in which a seven days' warrant was granted.

WATER POLICE COURT.

MONDAY.
BEFORE the Water Police Magistrate and Messrs. Curran, Hale, Josephson, Lester, and Goold.

Eight persons were fined for being drunk.

Alfred Johnston, given into custody charged with assaulting Mr. D. Cameron, was ordered to pay a penalty of 20s., in default seven days' imprisonment.

Charles Smith, described as a soldier, was charged with stealing one-half of a bank note for £5, and the half of a one-pound note, the property of the Postmaster-General. The apprehending constable's evidence having been taken, prisoner was remanded to the Bench at Wingham to be dealt with.

Charlotte Woods, Charles Kay, Harriet Schroder, and James Edderton were summoned for breaches of the Stamp Act. All the cases were adjourned until Wednesday week, pending the Judges' decision in the case of Dr. Moffitt.

Thomas Casey and wife were summoned by John Blue and wife, charged with having committed a breach of the Tenant Act. Case postponed for a week; Mr. Smithers, one of the magistrates who opened the case, not being present.

Charles Doyle appeared before the Court to answer the information of James Garvan, who charged him in the case of Doyle v. Garvan and others (a case of forcible entry and detainer, heard and determined on a previous day at this Court) with having committed wilful and corrupt perjury. Prosecutor and several witnesses were examined on his behalf and cross-examined. Case dismissed. Mr. Murray, instructed by Mr. Bailey, appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. W. Roberts for the defendant.

THE SUPPOSED MURDER IN PARRAMATTA-STREET.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

AT 9 o'clock, yesterday forenoon, the City Coroner (Mr. Henry Sheill) commenced, at his office, in Hyde Park, an inquest touching the cause of death of a young man, named Crawford. Deceased was found in a dying state, early on Sunday morning, in Green's-lane, at its junction with Parramatta-street. He was lying in a pool of blood, and died within half an hour after his removal to the Infirmary. A flesh wound, dividing a main artery, was found under the right shoulder; and death is understood to have resulted from the loss of blood sustained through the cutting of this vein. Two young men, named Kelly and Lindsay, were before the court on suspicion, in custody of the police. The jury having been empanelled, the body was viewed at the dead-house of the Sydney Infirmary. On the return to the court of the jurymen, and after sergeant Condick had asked the Coroner to adjourn the case to allow the police to make further investigations, although at that time he had several witnesses—the following evidence was submitted:—

Eliza Ann Armstrong deposed that she was a married woman, residing in Johnston-street, off Bay-street, with her husband, who was a labourer at the Gas Company's works; deceased, Robert Crawford, was her son by a previous marriage; he had lately been generally known by his stepfather's name—Armstrong; believed that he was only nineteen years of age last birthday, but was not certain; he was a native of Tyrone, Ireland, and unmarried; was a labourer in the employ of Goodlet and Smith, Surry Hills, and had been so for four years; was at work on Saturday last, when he gave her a pound in the evening; his wages were 28s. per week; he went off by himself from home about 7 o'clock on Saturday evening; he was well and sober; he said he was going to the theatre, but he did not say with whom; he was ordinarily of sober habits; he would treat and be treated; never saw him drunk; he was not in the habit of fighting; she did not think that he could have had more than 6s. when he went out; knew John Lindsay (now before the Court), he was frequently in company with deceased; they were acquaintances; knew John Kelly (also before the Court) by sight; he was also one of her son's companions; she had often seen them together; after he left home on Saturday night she did not again see her son, till she saw him dead in the Infirmary on Sunday; a coat (marked A) shown to her she recognised as her son's; he wore it when he left home; knew a knife (produced); it was her husband's; saw her son Robert take it away with him on Saturday night; he was in the habit of taking it away to cut tobacco; a white pocket-handkerchief was also his property.

Constable Thomas Graham, doing duty at No. 2 police station, deposed that about 3 o'clock on Sunday morning, while on duty in Parramatta-street, he saw opposite Tooth's brewery fence, three or four young men who were talking rather loud; he heard the name of "Foley" mentioned; one of them said to the other, "You cannot lick him in a certain time;" witness went up to them and said, "This is no time to be yarning in the street, you had better get home;" they went away; he knew two by sight; there was sufficient light to see their features; recognised two of them as Lindsay and Kelly, now before the Court; the man named Meany (before the Court) was one of the four; witness did not know him as he did the others; believed now that the man lying dead at the Infirmary was the fourth one of the company; these men went away on his speaking to them; witness was then by himself; about a quarter of an hour after this witness returned, and met a young man named Brown, who complained to him of having been assaulted by three or four young men; he said, "I must claim your protection, I am going to the Glebe, to which you must see me;" he said he was afraid that these young men would attack him again; witness proceeded a few yards with Brown, and heard the noise of men shouting, and then saw four young men on the footpath opposite Mr. Laundry's shop, nearly facing Linden-lane; witness approached them quickly; noticed that they were the same four young men he had previously seen; it was then about a quarter-past 3 o'clock; as he had spoken to them before he thought it necessary to act, and arrested Meany; three of them ran away, but he got hold of Meany, whom he took to No. 2 station-house, where he charged him with riotous behaviour in the public-street; Lindsay and Kelly ran in the direction of the Glebe; Crawford, who had lightish trousers, ran up Ultimo-lane; in about a quarter of an hour, after charging Meany, he was back in Parramatta-street; while opposite Green's-lane, he heard a sort of groaning noise, coming from the direction of Green's-lane; he crossed over and saw a man lying on his back in the lane, about a foot down from its junction with Parramatta-street; his feet were drawn partly inwards; his knees were somewhat elevated; he was breathing heavily; it was very dark and he could not see what was wrong; he struck a match and saw that he was covered with blood—especially on the right side; about three or four inches from the body, near the middle of the lane, there was a pool of blood; witness whistled for assistance; getting no answer, he ran to the station-house; got back alone in two or three minutes after giving information; found the man in the same position; there was no one near; in a short time constables Downey and Hamilton, with two or three civilians, arrived; they got a cab immediately, lifted the man into it and witness conveyed him to the Infirmary, where he handed him over to Dr. Markey; he remained in a state of unconsciousness from the time witness discovered him till he handed him over to the doctor at the Infirmary; did not then recognise him as the man he had previously seen with the four; when he was found lying on the ground he had no coat on; his face was partly covered with blood; a pair of trousers (produced) are like those worn by the man who ran down Ultimo-lane; did not notice what hat was worn by him; the man appeared to be about the same height as the one he saw running up this lane; the man who ran up Ultimo-lane had a dark coat on; when witness got back from the Infirmary he went to the place where he had found the young man; he had left Downey behind, whom he told to examine the place in the meantime; did not see Downey; by making use of matches he traced the blood for a distance of 130 yards from Green's-lane on the St. Benedict's side of Parramatta street to the part of the footway opposite Mr. Moss's pawn office; it stopped, so far as the pavement was concerned, opposite to Mr. Moss's; saw opposite this spot blood in the centre of Parramatta-street; judged that the bleeding had commenced opposite Mr. Moss's in the street, and from thence had, continued along the pavement to Green's-lane; found a hat (exhibit D) about a yard from the body of deceased in the gutter; did not then examine it to see whether there were marks of injury or blood on it; when he saw the young men opposite Tooth's brewery at 3 o'clock Lindsay appeared to be the worse for drink, although he could walk very well; he was the only one who appeared so to him; when his attention was first attracted to the men they appeared to be disputing in an apparently angry tone; they did not appear to be quarrelling—they seemed to be backing one another up; when he first saw them they were neither quarrelling nor fighting; he went to them in pursuance of a police regulation, which had reference to the assembling of persons together at unlawful hours; had seen Lindsay several times half-drunk on Sunday morning early, knocking about the streets; had not seen the men on Sunday morning before 3 o'clock; Green's-lane was on the opposite side of Parramatta-street to Ultimo-lane; the one was distant—though nearly opposite—about 150 yards from the other.

By jury: After he arrested Meany, Brown, who was present at the time, accompanied him to the police station; where he afterwards went he did not know.

By Coroner: Brown left the station about three or four minutes before witness; he complained that he had taken the wrong man, and said that it was Kelly who had struck him.

By jury: When he approached the young men they were close together; they did not seem to be fighting; not more than ten minutes elapsed from the time he found the man, till he got a cab.

By Coroner: Brown was not excited when he met him—he appeared to be afraid that the young men would attack them again; did not take particular notice of Brown—but he did not think that he was much excited; Brown did not say in what part of the Glebe he lived.

By Lindsay: I have seen you in Parramatta-street, knocking about on Sunday mornings, under the influence of drink; never saw you kicking up a row, but have seen you with mobs of young men at the corners of the street.

By Kelly: I am not sure that you went up to the Glebe with Lindsay—but I am sure you went in that direction; do not think that you went very far, as on looking back I saw you and Lindsay standing on the footpath some yards further on; I cannot say where you then went; did not see you go towards Green's-lane; think I only looked behind once; I have on several occasions seen you with mobs of young men about Parramatta-street; I am not sure that I have seen you out late.

By Coroner: When I took Meany away I looked back, and saw that the other three young men were standing some distance off; from the place I looked back to Ultimo-lane it was only some fifteen or twenty yards.

Constable Martin Downey deposed that about half-past 3 o'clock on Sunday morning constable Graham came to No. 2 Station-house and gave certain information which induced him to go to Green's-lane, at the corner of Parramatta-street, he there saw a man lying in the carriage-way of the lane; he was covered with blood; he was insensible; constable Graham got a cab and took him away to the Infirmary; witness remained at the spot in company of some young men who had come up; the body was that of the young man who had been identified as Crawford; witness struck matches and traced the blood from Green's-lane to opposite Mr. Moss's shop, where he suddenly lost it; did not go into the street; found a coat folded up lying on the pavement, close to the wall of Mr. Moss's establishment, this was (exhibit A), knife (exhibit B) he found shut in the coat pocket, in which he also found a pocket-handkerchief (exhibit C); a young man measured the length of pavement marked with stains of blood by pacing it, and gave the distance as 120 yards; the blood was quite fresh.

John Meany deposed that he resided at 16, Woolloomooloo-lane, and was by trade a galvanized iron worker; knew deceased by the name of Armstrong; was in his company on Sunday morning in Parramatta-street, when he was arrested by constable Graham and taken to the watch-house; he was half drunk; he had a perfect recollection of what occurred; Kelly, Lindsay, and Armstrong were in his company when he was apprehended; believed he was arrested for kicking up a disturbance; he was trying to get Kelly home to be thought Linden-lane, as he thought he was the worse for liquor; Kelly had been chaffing Lindsay—he thought about fighting, to the best of his knowledge; he was positive that the chaffing was about fighting; while this chaffing was going on, witness was apprehended; witness, when taken away by the constable, was apart from the others; a man (who now gives his name as James Brown), whom witness had seen that night at Twight's public-house, was in the policeman's company when arrested; did not remember a constable coming up to witness and three others while opposite Tooth's brewery and recommending them to go home; they were opposite Tooth's brewery half-an-hour before his arrest—he meant himself, Kelly, Lindsay, and deceased; a little before 12 o'clock on Saturday night witness met the deceased in York-street, while Kelly was in witness's company; about a quarter of an-hour after they separated in Market-street; witness saw Crawford (or Armstrong) about 2 o'clock on Sunday morning at Twight's public-house—the Welcome Inn—in Parramatta-street; Kelly had continued in his company; at this public-house witness and Kelly met Lindsay and Crawford; there were several others in the place; they remained there for about half-an-hour, and they (witness and the three others) left together; had no doubt but he recollected everything that took place at Twight's while he was there; Brown was in Twight's when witness went there; Brown offered to fight Kelly for a pound—saying to him that he could not fight; no money was staked, and the fight did not take place; Kelly was willing to fight; but Brown drew out of it; no one tried to stop a fight; there was no attempt to fight; did not hear of any dispute or see one between Crawford or any other party while at Twight's; did not hear a conversation opposite Tooth's brewery about a man named Foley; Kelly had a fight on Saturday night with a man at Macnamara's public-house in George-street; he meant on the path outside the premises, before he went to Twight's; Kelly had the best of this fight; did not see any marks on him; his nose did not bleed; Kelly wore black clothes; his trousers were of black material; while at Macnamara's and Twight's Kelly had no blood on his clothes; did not know the man with whom Kelly fought; they went direct to Twight's after the fight; the man bade them good night, and shook hands with Kelly at the corner of the Botany Road, now Regent-street, and opposite the Railway Hotel; did not see Kelly draw any blood from this strange man; after leaving Twight's, Brown came after them very soon; they were standing on the north side of Parramatta-street, a hundred yards from Twight's, when Brown came up to them; Kelly said, "Here's this cove who is going to fight me," and went towards him; Kelly ran towards Brown, who ran away; did not see them fighting; Crawford and Lindsay were talking together, and witness was standing apart; they did not approach Kelly or Brown, nor see what passed between them; saw Brown run, and Kelly pursue him; Brown came back with a constable in a few minutes after, they having in the interim been joined by Kelly; the constable took witness to the lock-up; the others stood there; witness protested that he had not been doing anything, and was still in custody; Brown accompanied witness and the constable to the watchhouse; Crawford, Kelly, and Lindsay were left behind; met Kelly about half-past 8 o'clock on Saturday night, and from that time was in his company till apprehended; Kelly struck another man at the corner of Goulburn and George streets that night, who did not return the blow; they passed two men, one of whom made a remark, and they returned, and Kelly asked "what they were talking about;" they had some words and Kelly struck one of them; Kelly appeared to be tipsy; he could walk; Kelly did smoke; did not see him with a knife that night; he did not use cut tobacco, and so had to cut his tobacco; witness, who worked in the same shop with Kelly, had seen a knife (produced, exhibit E) in his possession; during the fight at Macnamara's Kelly was thrown once or twice; the only other persons present were a man and woman; they did not stop; the man with whom Kelly fought had also a fall or two.

Lindsay declined to ask any question.

By Kelly: I swear that I did not see any blood on the man's nose; you may have had some specks of blood on your clothes, trousers, or boots without my noticing them; I did not see you bleed the nose of any person that night; you did strike another man in Market-street, but I did not see any blood come; did not see the man after you struck him, as a crowd gathered round; did not hear any people coming out of the public-house making any remarks to the effect that you had injured the man whom you had struck at Macnamara's; his nose might have bled without my seeing it; bleeding might have stopped by the time we met him again at Botany Road; no struggle took place at Market-street; you only struck one blow.

By Coroner: Lindsay appeared to be drunk when Kelly chased Brown; he could not walk straight; I know the house where Kelly lives—it is, I believe, in Linden-lane; I do not know Green's house.

By Kelly: You might have had a tear in the knee of your trousers without my observing it.

The Coroner here observed that the police were not at present prepared to go further with the case, and several witnesses had yet to be called. In about a quarter of an hour after Meany was arrested, Lindsay and Kelly being then in the company of deceased, he (Crawford) was found in a dying state with a wound—how received it was as yet impossible to say—in Green's-lane, where Kelly resided. One hat had been found in the centre of Parramatta-street, where the first traces of blood had been discovered, while another hat had been picked up in the lane where Crawford was picked up by the constable. He should adjourn the inquest till 9 o'clock on Friday morning next, as there would not be time for preparations to conclude the case on Wednesday, and Thursday was a public holiday.

Before this, the Coroner handed to sergeant Condick, Kelly's knife—exhibit E—instructing him to take it to Dr. Morris's residence, in Castlereagh-street, for him to make a microscopical investigation of the blades.

On Kelly asking Meany whether he did not recollect his having a fight with a man in Market-street on Saturday night, the Coroner, alluding to Kelly, remarked that he seemed to have had several fights on the one night. Kelly, who apparently overheard the remark, said that he always had a number of fights when drunk, but when sober he could assure the Court that he was "the quietest fellow out." Kelly is slightly built, over middle height, and of a pale complexion. On the adjournment of the case till Friday, he was removed, together with Lindsay, from the Court in custody of the police. A considerable number of persons congregated outside during the hearing of the evidence.

INTERCOLONIAL NEWS.

VICTORIA.

WE have received Melbourne papers bearing date the 18th, and from them we extract the following:—

The Argus says:—It seems that the Corporation of Melbourne will have to pay the duty, which will amount to about £1000, upon the organ which is now being built for the Town Hall. In the Legislative Assembly yesterday, the Treasurer, in reply to Mr. Vale, declined to place a sum of money upon the Estimates to recoup the Corporation the duty which will have to be paid on the importation. The Treasurer also twitted the Corporation with not subscribing to the various charitable institutions in the city, although he said he was informed that the act of incorporation would not allow them to do so, and this being the case, he said he would not object to place the amount paid for duty to the credit of a certain charitable institution which, it was represented to him, was in very embarrassed circumstances. Mr. Cohen said the Corporation would be glad to subscribe to the local charities if the Treasurer would introduce a bill enabling them to do so; and Mr. Berry promised to make a note of the matter.

We understand that the conference on the subject of the border duties treaty between this colony and New South Wales, to which Mr. Duffy alluded on Tuesday night, is fixed for the 15th of next month. The question of establishing a fortnightly mail service with England will also be considered, and it is not improbable that representatives from some of the other sister colonies will be present at the meeting.

The first visitation at the Melbourne University since it was founded in 1855, took place yesterday (16th). The visitor is the Governor for the time being of the colony, and, according to the authorities on the subject, it is the duty of a visitor to prevent any irregularity or illegality in the institution under his control. The irregularities or illegalities about which inquiry was to be made yesterday were connected with the action of the Council in nominating a board in England to select a professor of classics in place of Mr. M. H. Irving. In the instructions to the board were conditions that the gentleman selected should not be in holy orders, and that he should be a graduate of Cambridge, Oxford, or Dublin. These restrictions were objected to by several members of the University as invidious, and also as illegal, because, it was said, the Council had no power to limit its choice. To this it was replied, the Council has not placed any limitation on itself, but it has the exclusive power to appoint professors; and its instructions to the English Board merely amount to a statement that there is no use sending out to this colony any gentlemen who are not graduates of the universities named, for we will not appoint them. The Council could appoint whom they chose, and they could not be compelled to appoint anybody but those whom they please. It was said also that there were conditions such as only could be imposed by a statute adopted by the Council and the Senate; but to this it was replied that the sole control was vested in the council, without reference to any statute. It was further contended that the Council had named a certain stipend as that which would be paid without fees; that the Council had no power to say the professors shall not have fees; and that they had no power to state the amount of stipend, unless there was a statute on the subject. To this it was replied that if the Council could not pay a stipend, of course the professors could not get any; and as to fees, if they were entitled to them they would get them, whatever resolutions the Council passed. The main grievance, however, was that professors were precluded from sitting in Parliament or joining political associations. This, it was contended for the Council, was not illegal, in the sense of being repugnant to any Act of Parliament. The professors might sit in Parliament if any constituency would elect them, but it was another question if they could retain their professorships. If any professor chose to test the question he could do so by getting elected, but it was clearly not within the functions of the visitor to interfere. Viscount Canterbury, who was assisted by Mr. Justice Molesworth, announced that his decision would be given on a future day. The proceedings, so far as spectators were concerned, were very tame, there being no pageant of any kind, and the arguments being on dry points of law. A few ladies came to witness the ceremonial, but they evidently did not appreciate the proceedings, for they retired at an early stage of the discussion.

An extraordinary case, showing how Parliamentary patronage or influence had been exercised in a very questionable manner, was heard before his Honor Judge Cope in the County Court yesterday (16th.) Miss Sarah Ann Metcalfe, as executrix of her deceased brother, Charles Metcalfe, sued Mr. William Robinson, formerly member of the Legislative Assembly, for £40, which her brother had lent to the defendant during his lifetime. Mr. Robinson acknowledged to having received £30 from the deceased, but said it was for services rendered to him. The services, it appeared from Mr. Robinson's own evidence, were obtaining a situation for the deceased in the Post-office, and also for using his influence to settle a difficulty which had occurred about a letter that was opened by some means in the Post-office. Mr. Robinson said that in 1865 he obtained a situation for Metcalfe as supernumerary in the post-office, and in 1868 he got the situation made permanent for him, and received for the latter service £20. In 1869 it seemed that a letter was mysteriously opened at the post-office, and Metcalfe was anxious that the matter should be quietly settled. He (Robinson) then went to Mr. M'Crae, who was Minister of Public Works at the time, to do what he could for Metcalfe, and rendered such services in smoothing over the affair as entitled him to receive £10 from Metcalfe. The particulars about the opening of the letter did not come out yesterday. His Honor Judge Cope seemed to be either unwilling to decide the case or to be of opinion that it was one for a jury to determine, as he nonsuited the plaintiff, but without costs, and said if it were brought on again it must be tried before a jury.

It will be remembered that Captain Lucas, of the steamship Southern Cross, was instrumental in rescuing the crew of the barque Golden Age, recently wrecked on Vansittart Shoal, near Tasmania. The owners, captain, and crew being desirous of showing their appreciation of the great kindness of Captain Lucas, waited upon him yesterday (16th) to present to him two testimonials. The first was presented by Mr. Hugh R. Reid, of Messrs. Reid, Poole, and Co., on behalf of Captain M'Intyre and the owners of the Golden Age; it consisted of an elegant silver centrepiece, designed either for fruit or flowers. On a shield at the base is engraved the following inscription:—"Presented by Captain M'Intyre and Reid, Poole, and Co., to Captain R. Lucas, of the s.s. Southern Cross, in appreciation of his humane services in rescuing the crew of the wrecked barque Golden Age, August, 1871." After this presentation was made, the crew, ten in number, stepped forward, and asked Captain Lucas to accept of a large photograph of themselves, suitably inscribed, as a small memento of the kindness shown to them as shipwrecked mariners by Captain Lucas and the citizens of Hobart Town, who collected upwards of £70 for their immediate wants. Captain Lucas, in reply, expressed his warm thanks for the handsome presents, but declined to take any credit to himself for performing only an ordinary act of humanity. The proceedings then terminated.

A meeting of the Volunteer Land Certificate Association was held at the Excelsior Hotel last night (16). Mr. J. S. Riddell occupied the chair. About forty persons attended. Letters were read from the secretaries of the branch associations at Ballarat, Clunes, and Sandhurst, promising every support to the central committee in prosecuting the claims of the volunteers. The secretary stated that since the last meeting of the association the committee had held several meetings, and had decided upon drawing up a circular for distribution among the members of Parliament. The treasurer then read the document, which set forth that the report of the Land Warrant Board, appointed to decide upon the claims of volunteers to land or its equivalent value, had not carried out the promises made to the deputation which waited upon the Treasurer of the late Government; that the Board had not been instructed to consider the claims of the Volunteers in the manner promised by Mr. Francis; that one year was deducted from each Volunteer's time for qualification; that while the claims of widows of Volunteers who have not served their full time are recognised by the Board, the claims of Volunteers who have been hindered from completing their time are entirely ignored; and that while the Land Act of 1865 provides for the issue of land certificates to the Volunteer force, the report of the Board pronounces any Volunteer serving under that Act as having no claim to compensation. It was resolved that the circular should be printed, and distributed among the members of Parliament. It was also resolved that a deputation should wait upon the hon. the Treasurer, to ask him if the Government would carry out the promises made by the late Treasurer to the deputation which waited upon him.

It is very difficult to get at the exact truth with regard to the refusal of the Commissioner of Customs to allow a tank of malt to be exported to New South Wales upon the requisite securities being entered into. In reply to a further question put by Mr. Langton on the subject yesterday (17th instant), Mr. Berry read a long statement from the Collector, which did not touch the issue at all, and, being further pressed on the subject, said that the parties interested had refused to enter into a certain bond; but he did not state by or under what authority the bond was demanded.

At the committee meeting of the Foreign Industries and Forests Commission yesterday, several branches of the olive, with ripe berries on them, were produced from different gardens in the vicinity of Melbourne. A considerable quantity of oil has been made this season from the olives planted some years since at Rockbear, oil of a very good quality too.

The Herald of the 17th says:—Colonel Sankey left for Adelaide yesterday, and is not expected to return until a day or two previous to the sailing of the next mail steamer. When in Adelaide, Colonel Sankey will advise the Government of South Australia on the question of a scheme of water supply. We understand that the greater part of Colonel Sankey's report on the system of our Government water supply is now in type, and that the whole will be completed so as to allow of the report being presented to Parliament on Tuesday next.

OUR WATER SUPPLY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—Towards the close of last session, Mr. Neale asked if the Government intended to invite Colonel Sankey to this colony. Sir James Martin said that the Government had not come to any determination as to whether it was necessary to invite Colonel Sankey to this colony or not.

The visit of Colonel Sankey to Victoria is, I humbly submit, an opportunity our Government should not neglect of getting, if possible, some valuable information and advice from an eminent hydraulic engineer from India, on the best means of storing water for the use of town and country, irrigation, water-power, and other purposes.

It is greatly to be lamented that there has never been, since Mr. Lennox (very many years ago), an hydraulic engineer in the Government service. If we had been so fortunate as to have had, as our engineer-in-chief, Sir Arthur Cotton, who dammed the Godavery, we might now not only have had the metropolis superabundantly supplied with water, but also a vast extent of land irrigated, and the wealth of the country increased to an incalculable extent. About half a million acres of land were irrigated and brought under cultivation by means of a dam, designed and constructed by Sir Arthur Cotton, across the Godavery River. The Rev. P. Riorden told me he had been informed by Mr. Verdon (the Agent-General of Victoria in England), that either Sir Arthur, or his brother Sir William (who is also an eminent hydraulic engineer in India) had offered his services to Victoria, but they were not accepted. In order to save a few hundreds, or at the most a few thousand pounds, it is very possible that that colony may have cost hundreds of thousands, if not millions of pounds. At that time the Victorians seem to have had no idea of the value of water, although it is, unquestionably, of greater value than mines of silver and gold. Mr. Riorden has had many opportunities of seeing the immense value of irrigation, and he is quite enthusiastic on the subject. In one of his lectures, he points out the enormous losses this colony has suffered from the want of water—such as the deaths of sheep, cattle, and horses, the loss of crops, the loss of employment by men who were consuming but producing nothing. The result was, he says, debts contracted, properties mortgaged, and respectable families ruined.

The rivers and creeks are natural reservoirs which nature has excavated for the use of man, and if there be any law (Mr. Riorden says) which prevents their being dammed, it ought to be modified, so that they may be made plentiful storehouses of water. He urges upon the Government to send to India for an hydraulic engineer who knows his business properly and practically, and he urges upon the electors to speak aloud and let their voices be heard by their representatives.

The different schemes hitherto broached, for supplying Sydney with water, have now been before the public a sufficient length of time to enable everyone interested in the matter to form some sort of an opinion—and what citizen of Sydney is not interested? Without waiting for Colonel Sankey's report (who it is possible may never honour us with a visit), I would ask if Mr. Moriarty's scheme to draw the water from the Nepean would be approved by a majority of those who would have to pay the rates necessary to cover its cost? I think not. At any rate, if a majority of the citizens are in favour of that scheme, they owe it to themselves to let the Government know that fact; for I presume that nothing can be holding the Government back but a distrust of Mr. Moriarty's scheme. If they really think that scheme to be the solution of the problem, and to be the best available method for supplying the city with water, they would have been wholly inexcusable for allowing the Parliamentary session to close without bringing forward a bill to raise the money, and to settle the principles on which the management of the undertaking should be based. But, if we are not to have the Upper Nepean scheme, are we therefore to waste precious time? Is nothing to be done to meet the want which, ere long, will be an urgent one, and which cannot, at the hour of necessity, be met of a sudden? Is nothing to be done to secure a final decision on that other scheme, which has now been so largely discussed—I mean, of course, the plan of damming the George's River near its mouth? All that hostile criticism can do in disparagement of that scheme has now been pretty well done; and, bearing fully in mind every such adverse criticism, I fearlessly ask, whether it is possible to point to any other scheme which will supply water so quickly, so cheaply, and in such abundance? The objections have been mainly two-fold. First, those of an engineering character, and secondly those as to the quality of the water. I need not rediscuss the former. It seems absurd to keep repeating that a thing cannot be done, when contractors of large experience, who have successfully conducted great operations and have comfortable fortunes to lose, say that it can be done, and are willing to risk their credit and money in the work. The rough estimates that have been made of the cost of constructing a dam across George's River have varied, according to the site selected and the style of architecture proposed, while the lowest has been about £60,000, and the highest has not exceeded £150,000. The additional cost of pumps and pipes would probably not make the total exceed a quarter of a million. No money could be better laid out, and the amount would be small compared with the result attained, or with the expenditure of the Upper Nepean scheme. In Victoria though the Yan Yean was a costly work, the original debt has already been reduced out of the net profits left by the rates, after deducting interest and the cost of management and maintenance. And the Victorians see their way pretty clearly, to the satisfactory result, that the Yan Yean will prove a strictly reproductive work—will pay for itself, and still remain a valuable property. Our present Sydney water works never can achieve such a result. We might attain a similar state of things, if not surpassing, by adopting the George's River scheme, and having a satisfactory system of rating. But it has been argued, that though the engineering difficulties are imaginary, and though the finance of the George's River scheme would be, in the highest degree satisfactory, yet the water would never be sufficiently good for domestic use. It is impossible to concede this objection. The water at the site of the proposed dam, would come, for at least two-thirds of its quantity, off sandstone and uninhabited country, and would therefore be proportionably superior to the water above the dam at Liverpool, which drains a partly populated district, and a large area of Wianamatta shale. If the Liverpool water has for years supplied the domestic wants of the town, it may equally well supply a larger population. If it has not proved unsuitable for the railway locomotives, for the paper mill, and the wool-washing establishment, it may equally well suit the purposes of other industries. If the Wianamatta water has already proved so serviceable, why should it prove less so when diluted with two-thirds of its volume of sandstone water? But though the objection is not admissible, let us for the sake of argument suppose it was, and that the water was not quite up to the standard required by the most fastidious, even then, would it not be superabundantly worth while, at the expense of a quarter of a million, to have an unlimited supply of water available for manufactories and for all domestic purposes?—a water which would not only be most welcome, when the Botany supply ran short, but which many might prefer as a beverage more wholesome than a liquid of greater chemical purity! With the Botany engines at rest, because there was no water in the pond, would not the citizens of Sydney be thankful to have a plentiful supply of water from the George's River, even though a chemical analysis should show a trace of salt, magnesia, and lime, due to the short acquaintance it made with the Wianamatta shale, in its course from the clouds to the river bed? The immense importance to the manufacturing interest of Sydney has not been sufficiently considered, and a weight has been laid on the question of purity, as if the Sydney water supply was all wanted for drinking. But not a hundredth part of the water pumped from Botany is drunk by man or beast, and the Botany water is often so dirty with rust and decomposed vegetable matter, that filters are a household necessity. The increased demand which so taxes the resources of an engineer at Botany is not a demand for more water to drink, but for general miscellaneous purposes; and is it not folly to go a great distance for the purpose of getting a particularly pure water which must inevitably be contaminated before it can be conveyed to us, when not one drop in a hundred is wanted for drinking? There is not a house in Sydney which might not, by means of a tank, store as much rain water as is needed for drinking and cooking. The great household demand is bathing, scrubbing, washing, &c., and it is for these purposes and manufactories that a constant and ample supply is desirable, so that even if Sydney were reduced to the necessity of falling back on an inferior supply for general purposes it could easily meet the difficulty of finding pure water for drinking. Financially considered it would be better to spend a quarter of a million in securing water, of which 99 out of 100 drops would be required, leaving the hundredth drop to be supplied in another way, than to go to ten times the expense for a water which at its source is pure enough to drink, but which would have to traverse many miles of Wianamatta shale to be stored in a Wianamatta reservoir! Considerations such as these seem to me completely to dispose of the objection to the quality of the water; but, while admitting the objection, for the sake of answering it, I wish it to be distinctly understood that I do not admit it. I merely wish to show that, if sound, it would be comparatively unimportant. Even if the Botany source were to fail altogether, and Sydney were to be supplied exclusively from the George's River, any one not satisfied with it for drinking purposes could easily catch enough from his roof to make himself easy on that score.

Yours truly,
THOMAS HOLT.

Arthurleigh, 18th August.

P.S.—Professor Watt said at a meeting of the Royal Society:—"In England water is considered pure if it is free from sewage matter. The water at the Trafalgar-square fountains contained 68·94 per cent. per gallon of saline matter, and had been laid on to her Majesty's Palace, by the advice of her physicians. The total quantity of saline matter in the South Creek (on the Wianamatta shale) was 38·7 grains per gallon; so that those who drank it took no more than was taken by her Majesty." Professor Watt further said:—"It is remarkable that, except in special cases, a water of moderate hardness, like that supplied to London, to Paris, and to Vienna, is always preferred, and is best suited for domestic purposes."

The ship La Hogue from London arrived to-day with a cargo of general merchandise.

The monthly meeting of the committee of the Chamber of Commerce was held at the Exchange this day; the Chairman, Mr. J. B. Watt, presided. There were also present the following members:—Messrs. J. L. Montefiore, J. S. Willis, B. Molineaux, S. A. Joseph, A. Learmonth, and T. Sandy. The subject of stamping shipping documents for goods exported was considered, and it appearing questionable whether receipts intended to be exchanged for bills of lading require to be stamped as well as the bill of lading, it was resolved that steps should be taken by the Chamber to have the point clearly defined. Reports were made by the chairman of the results of interviews with the Government respecting the shortening of the time still allowed by the Customs Act before importers can be required to pass entries for goods, and relative to Steam Postal Services via Torres Straits and San Francisco. The attention of the committee was called to the inadequate accommodation in the port to dock vessels of war of the largest size, which it was deemed advisable should be remedied to maintain the pre-eminence of the port as a naval station. The Alfred Dock, now constructing in Victoria, is much larger than the Fitzroy Dock, Sydney, as shown by the following figures:—

	Fitzroy Dock, Port Jackson.	Albert Dock, Victoria.
Width between piers ...	60 feet	80 feet
Depth of water over sill, high water, spring tides ...	21	27
Ditto ditto, low water ...	—	22
Length of floor ...	290	400
Length over all ...	320	415
Width of dock (top) ...	80	97

After discussion of the matter, the members present were appointed a deputation to communicate with the Government and urge the importance of steps being taken to construct another dock of sufficient dimensions to take in the largest sized vessels.

The Customs' revenue collected at this port during the month ending 31st ultimo was as follows:—Spirits, £26,714 6s. 11d.; wine (still), £1291 2s. 2d.; ditto (sparkling), £96 4s. 5d.; ale, porter, and beer (in wood), £2550 8s. 6d.; ditto (in bottles), £1423 16s. 9d.; tobacco and snuff, £4806 10s. 5d.; ditto (unmanufactured), £1065 19s.; cigars, £168 1s. 11d.; tea, £1697 14s. 1d.; coffee and chicory, £735 13s. 2d.; sugar (refined) £30 0s. 5d.; ditto, unrefined, £5292 7s. 8d.; molasses, £10 3s. 3d.; opium, £719 15s. 1d.; rice, £144 3s. 10d.; dried fruits, £1756 15s. 5d.; nuts, £4 13s. 4d.; malt, £215 19s. 3d.; hops, £123 16s.; ad valorem duty, £6848 8s.; specific duty, £6535 16s. 3d.; bonded warehouses, £530 5s.; gold, £836 12s. 9d.; pilotage, £570 15s. 4d.; harbour dues, £56 5s.; total, £64,225 14s. This amount, though larger than any month's receipts since February last, and also £2775 in excess of the corresponding month of last year, does not realise the revenue anticipated. The large arrivals of merchandise to hand during the past portion of the present month, and the expected shipments of new season's teas and sugar will probably assist in reducing the deficit.

The following table shows the monthly receipts during the first seven months of both years:—

The import markets opened this morning with a light demand for small lines for trade purposes at late rates. There was a full attendance on 'Change when the only transactions reported were stock and share market sales. Amongst these we note a rise of 2s. 6d. in City Bank, and 10s. in Tookay Mining, which are now quoted at 31½. Peak Downs were 6d. lower, and City of Sydney £1 below last week's figure.

The produce auctioneers purpose holding their fortnightly wool sales in Bell's-chambers, to-morrow afternoon, at the usual hour.

We have Mauritius advices to the 3rd ultimo. Messrs. Ireland, Fraser, and Co.'s circular of June 30 states:—

The prospects for next season continue satisfactory, and we still estimate the coming crop at 125,000 to 130,000 tons. Sugar-making has already commenced on some estates, and a good many planters will begin to cut their canes early in July; but we do not expect that our market will be well supplied with the new sugars until August. Our exports of last crop up to this date aggregate 81,800 tons—viz., 25,500 tons to Europe, 35,300 tons to Australia, 3900 tons to New Zealand, 15,300 tons to Bombay, and 2300 tons to the Cape and other quarters; and we calculate that about 9000 tons remain for shipment, nearly the whole being in second hands. Our market being now very bare of refining sugars, while they have lately been in demand for shipment to Europe, prices have continued to be well maintained, and quality equal to Nos 15 and 14 Dutch standard may be quoted at 5.25 dollars per 100 lbs. For some time past the demand for white and yellow grocery sugars has been extremely limited, and prices have undergone a further decline since the beginning of the month. White crystallized sugars are still comparatively abundant, but our market is sparingly supplied with good yellow sorts. We quote these descriptions as follows:—Finest white crystals, per 100 lbs. French, 7 dollars to 7.15 dollars; good to fine ditto, 6.75 dollars to 7 dollars; crystallized yellow, 6.50 dollars to 6.75 dollars; finest yellow counter, 6.25 dollars to 6.50 dollars; middling to good ditto, 6 dollars to 6.25 dollars; finest yellow syrup, 5.75 dollars to 6 dollars; good ditto, 5.25 dollars to 5.50 dollars; good brown syrup, 4.50 dollars to 5 dollars; middling ditto, 4 dollars to 4.50 dollars; low ditto, 3.75 dollars to 4 dollars.

From the Australian colonies the clearances since the 2nd instant have been the Catherine, 339 tons, for Melbourne, and Tein Eseer, 129 tons, for Port Chalmers, New Zealand. Our exports to Australia and New Zealand from the 1st August last to date aggregate 85,302 tons to Australia, and 3200 tons to New Zealand against 43,505 tons to Australia, and 3560 tons to New Zealand, during the corresponding period of the preceding season. The following vessels are now loading or about to load, viz.:—Caton, 275 tons, for Adelaide; Aberdeen, 450 tons, for Sydney; and Tasso, 275 tons, for Launceston, and 40 tons to Sydney. From the neighbouring island of Reunion we learn that the Xantho was on the eve of her departure for Melbourne or Sydney with about 500 tons. There was nothing else doing in shipments for the colonies, and the remainder of last crop, say 800 to 900 tons, would be forwarded by chartered vessels expected from Australia. The following is a comparative statement, showing the exports of sugar up to the 30th June during the present and the two preceding seasons:—

	Crop 1868-9. lbs.	1869-70. lbs.	1870-1. lbs.
United Kingdom ...	41,982,588	78,173,906	30,195,370
France ...	9,037,359	21,737,549	10,097,148
Australia ...	61,009,934	86,477,908	73,093,166
New Zealand ...	6,821,003	7,987,338	6,701,981
Cape ...	1,484,908	4,061,318	3,717,258
Bombay ...	26,645,219	58,348,431	31,357,009
Other places ...	1,161,231	2,929,295	3,409,425
Total ...	149,463,301	260,583,450	168,942,002

Exchange on England has undergone a slight decline during the past month, and may now be quoted at 3¼ to 3½ per cent. premium for drafts at 90 days' sight on London. Documents and credit bills are scarce, and will continue so until the opening of next season in August. The Oriental Bank negotiates drafts at 60 days' sight on Melbourne and Sydney at par, and on the other Australian ports and New Zealand at 1 per cent. discount. British sovereigns are worth 6, and Australian 3 per cent. premium. The scarcity of tonnage still continues, and rates for the United Kingdom have further advanced, the French vessels Flore, Perseverance, and Alexandrine having been chartered for Cork for orders, at respectively 65s, 67s 6d, and 70s per ton. There is, however, little demand for vessels for Australia, and rates cannot be quoted over 40s per ton to Melbourne or Sydney, and 50s to other ports. Our regular shipping season will commence in August, and as our requirements of shipping will be large we are inclined to think that freights will rule high until the end of the year, for while we shall have a large crop to export we expect that the low rates which ruled here last season will deter many vessels from visiting our port, and that we may have a scarcity of tonnage. Although importations of grain still continue on a materially reduced scale, our market has not yet begun fairly to recover from the long continued depression induced by excessive shipments and the accumulation of heavy stocks. Wheat: The stock in the island is still heavy, but importations having recently been on a very small scale, holders are asking advanced prices. No improvement has as yet taken place, however, and we continue to quote Doodah 3.50 dollars to 3.75 dollars per bag, with an upward tendency. There is no Australian in the market, and we quote nominally 2.60 dollars to 2.65 dollars per 100 lbs. Duty 6d per bag of 164 lbs. Flour: We have still to advise an absence of importations of any importance, but although our market continues inactive, owing to the heavy stocks of second quality in hand, we may look for some improvement in prices shortly. Fine Australian flour is very scarce, and a small parcel ex Tasso recently realised 3.35 dollars per 100 lbs. We quote second quality 3.50 dollars to 3.60 dollars per 100 lbs. Bran: The market is only moderately supplied with Australian, but prices are kept down by the sale of the produce of the mills in the island at low rates. We quote Australian and Cape at 1.90 dollars to 2 dollars per 100 lbs. respectively. Oats: Supplies of Indian are still abundant, and we quote this description 2.30 dollars to 2.40 dollars per 100 lbs. Cape are worth 2.60 dollars, and Australian 2.40 dollars per 100 lbs. Tallow: Our market is very bare of this article, and this being the season when there exists a good demand, first arrivals will do well. In the absence of transactions, we quote nominally at 12 dollars to 13 dollars per 100 lbs.

The Argus of Friday reports of the Melbourne markets:—

In the import markets to-day we note a very considerable improvement in the demand generally, increased activity being reported on all sides. Inquiries, however, are of such a nature as to satisfy us that the improvement is only temporary, the explanation being that buyers hitherto have allowed stocks to run very low, and now they require replenishing. In breadstuffs the utmost dullness prevails. No sales of flour are reported, but we understand bakers' parcels of best Adelaide brands are quitted at £16 5s to £16 10s. For Victorian town mill flour we continue to quote up to £16. Adelaide wheat cannot be sold over 6s 10d net. No fresh transactions have come under our notice. We learn that some 50 tons of wheat and 100 tons of flour have been entered for shipment to Natal by the Sea Nymph. Another vessel is loading for the same port, which we learn will take away 250 tons of flour—a circumstance which is considered satisfactory, as England as a market for our produce is completely shut out at present. Oats are heavy; common, the only sorts offering, are disposed of at 3s 3d to 3s 5d; a line of 3000 bushels was sold privately at the first-named figure, while under the hammer sales were effected at 3s 2d to 3s 5½d. Business in maize is reported at 3s 5d to 3s 9d. We note a brisk demand for new teas, which meet with a great deal of favour; from 600 to 700 packages have been taken up in the course of the day, at all prices up to 2s 1d. Old congous have also been disposed of at 11d to 13d for low common, and up to 1s 9d for fine medium. Malt is very firm at the advance lately established, but we do not learn of any further sales. Oilmen's stores have met with increased inquiries; sales of cream of tartar have been effected at up to 1s 5d. Rice is very quiet in the face of large shipments coming forward so late in the season. The Mary Miller, from Hongkong, just arrived, has 5557 bags, a portion of which goes to Sydney. The Arabian, which cleared from Calcutta on 22nd June with 440 tons, may be shortly expected. By a late telegram, it appears that 230 tons Patna rice had been bought for the Victory. A cargo is expected shortly from Bangkok, and one from Saigon, which will increase our stocks further by 900 tons. Quotations for Patna range from £22 to £24. Kerosene is beginning to obtain more notice. A shipment of 2000 cases Devoe's was taken up in one line at within a 1d of 2s or thereabouts. An invoice of 30 cases English galvanized iron, heavy gauge, was got rid of at a full price. Sugars are steadily moving off. We are advised of the sale of 1500 bags low refining description, on terms withheld. Another parcel of 600 bags ration was placed at £27. In liquids, we hear of the quittance of three shipments of Bass's bulk ale, about 150 hogsheads, on private terms. 1000 cases Devenish's bottled ales were cleared off in one line, and we understand that the importers now hold 1000 barrels. 4000 barrels Byass's stout have also been taken up by one buyer, and a similar figure it is likely will be asked in future for this brand.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

A MAGISTERIAL inquiry respecting the death of Theresa Zartman, took place on Friday, the 18th instant, at 4 p.m., before Mr. George Langley, J.P.

Martin Zartman stated on oath: I am a farmer, living at Ryde; I am the father of deceased, who is 20 years of age; at a quarter-past 1 this morning deceased, who was suffering from bowel complaint, and who had been outside twice previously, got up and said she would make herself a cup of tea, thinking it might do her good; she went outside to get the water, and as she did not return in the course of five minutes I became uneasy, and got up to look for her; I called for her, and receiving no answer, I looked in the closet, and haysheds for her, when I suddenly missed the bucket from its usual place; I then hastened to the well, which is covered, but has no lid; I searched the well with a long pole without finding her; in the meantime I kept calling for my man, who soon hastened to my assistance, and succeeded in recovering the body, which we brought into the house, assisted by the Messrs. Best, and tried to restore the suspended animation, but with no avail; I also sent Mr. James Best for a doctor; deceased must have been at least 10 minutes in the water; I have no doubt deceased met with her death by accidentally falling down the well.

James Carolan deposed: I am a labouring man in the employ of last witness, and live on his farm; the place I sleep in is only a very few yards from the house of last witness; I knew deceased, and saw her for the last time alive about 10 o'clock last night; some time after having retired I still heard her voice in cheerful conversation; at about a quarter-past 1 this morning I was called by my master, who cried oh! and lost (here his voice became indistinct); I hastened to him and found him at the well searching for his daughter, whose body I succeeding in finding; the hole of the well is about 3 feet square; the well is about 15 yards from the house; I have known the last witness for a long time; I have been in his employ for a week; I never heard any quarrel in the house; if such had taken place last night I must have heard it; I have no doubt deceased met with her death by accidentally falling into the well.

Edward Ascher deposed: I am a medical man, residing at Ryde; at about twenty-five minutes past 1 o'clock this morning I was sent for to see deceased, and I saw her in about a quarter of an hour from that time; she was dead, and had been so for some time; the body had the usual symptoms of death from asphyxia from drowning; I found the body in such a position and under such circumstances that showed attempts had been made to restore the suspended animation.

Robert Champley Rutter deposed: I am a legally qualified medical practitioner, residing at Parramatta; I examined the body of deceased, which showed the usual symptoms of death from asphyxia through drowning; there were no injuries on the body received before death.

Verdict according to the evidence.

Mr. Langley gave the necessary certificate for interment.

MARAVILLA COCOA.—No breakfast table is complete without this delicious beverage.—The GLOBE says, "Various importers and manufacturers have attempted to attain a reputation for their prepared cocoas; but we doubt whether any thorough success had been achieved until Messrs. Taylor, Brothers discovered the extraordinary qualities of 'Maravilla' Cocoa. Adapting their perfect system of preparation to this finest of all species of the Theobroma, they have produced an article which supersedes every other cocoa in the market. Entire solubility, a delicate aroma, and a rare concentration of the purest elements of nutrition distinguish the Maravilla cocoa above all others. For homœopaths and invalids we could not recommend a more agreeable or valuable beverage." Sold in packets only by all grocers, of whom also may be had Taylor, Brothers' Original Homœopathic Cocoa and Soluble Chocolate, Steam Mills—Brick-lane, London. Export Chicory Mills, Bruges, Belgium.—ADV.

BOOKS, Albums, Stationery, &c.—Chas. Moore and Co. beg to direct the attention of buyers to their unreserved auction sale of a choice selection of standard works (in every department of literature), albums, &c., at their Sale Rooms, Pitt-street, this day, at 11 a.m.—ADV.

THE TICHBORNE CASE.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS, WESTMINSTER, JUNE 2.
BEFORE the Lord Chief Justice and a special jury.

TICHBORNE V. LUSHINGTON.

The claimant's examination was this morning resumed by Mr. Giffard: Soon after my return in July litigation began in Chancery. Sir John Rolt was my counsel. I was not in Court when he tendered me as a witness. I was not cross-examined. I had no objection. In the following year, 1868, an arrangement was made by which I was to go to Chili. I went on the 9th September, 1868. I had been suffering from erysipelas. I got to Lisbon and proceeded to Rio. I was not very well when I arrived. I arranged to go to Valparaiso. I left it to Mr. Stephen and Mr. Hall to choose the route. They were on my side, the others were not with us. I went as far as Montevideo, and was very bad. It was arranged we should go to Buenos Ayres, and then by overland route. They went by the Straits of Magellan. They left me to go to Valparaiso. Montevideo was on our way to Buenos Ayres. At Buenos Ayres I remained on board the steamer Arno for three days. I was ill. I went about 1100 miles to Cordova, about half-way between Buenos Ayres and Valparaiso. I remained several days waiting for Captain Burton, Major Rickard, and the Hon. Constable Maxwell. I then started for Mendoza by diligence. On the night of November 26th I sent my luggage to the diligence office. It was to start at 5 next morning. There were three to start. I did not go, for I was taken ill. The landlord and his wife, named Colorado, attended me, but I was unable to proceed; finally I came back, partly under advice. I saw the Vice-Consul at Cordova, Dr. Gordon; he is a medical man. I saw also Dr. Green; he was an American. I was at Cordova about a fortnight or three weeks. I got back to England the latter part of January, 1869. I was prevented from going to Mellipilla by my state of health. I believe I am still suffering from the same complaint—tapeworm. The diligence which I should have gone in was stopped by brigands. My weight is 26 stone and 4 lbs. When I was at Cordova in 1868 I was about 22 stone; Christmas-day, 1866, I was 18 stone. When I was in Australia in January, 1865, I was 11 stone 4 lb. When I was in the regiment in Ireland I was 10 stone 4 lb. I met Alfred Orton about 1857, and saw him in 1856. Before I left I lost sight of him over three years.

It was then announced that this was the end of the examination in chief.

The Solicitor-General: Call Mr. Holmes on his subpœna duces tecum.

Mr. Holmes was accordingly called.

Mr. Serjeant Ballantine: He has only left the court for a short time; he has the documents, and it was supposed the examination might last longer—at least an hour.

A messenger was sent for Mr. Holmes, and he came shortly afterwards. He then produced, by consent of Mr. Serjeant Ballantine, the will made at Wagga Wagga by the claimant.

The claimant, cross-examined by the Solicitor-General: This is my signature (to the will). My mother's name is Henrietta Felicite. (Here some one repeated the name or a name, and his Lordship said,—"I heard the witness say 'Felicite.' Some one said 'Felicité.' If I could find out who spoke I would commit him. Let that person stand up." No one, of course, answered, and the learned Judge ordered the portion of the court near the witness-box to be cleared, and a man to be stationed so as to prevent any possible prompting or interruption. As soon as the confusion and noise in the court which had been caused by this episode had subsided the cross-examination of the witness was resumed.) My mother's name was Henrietta Filicite (sic). I had a purpose for making the will. I decline to answer what that was. I will not answer.

The learned Judge: I order you to answer.

Witness: Then I obey. Mr. Gibbs would not advance me a sum of money; therefore I trumped up any kind of thing I possibly could do, making the whole contents wrong in every shape and way.

The Solicitor-General: And this was your attorney; the man who you said to Lady Tichbourne was the best friend you had in Australia, and you wished to defraud him?

Witness: I will not say defraud; but certainly I put everything wrongly. He said he would not let me have money except on execution of the will. I believe the money came from Cottie, a banker. Gibbs got the money. He wished me to make the will. I do not think he refused to get me the money. I executed it, knowing it to be untrue from beginning to end. The date is June 1, 1866. I had not seen Bogle or Guilfoyle or any one about the Tichborne matters. The Hampshire man (alluded to in the examination in chief) knew nothing about Tichborne-park. He didn't know where it was. I wished to conceal all about myself from Gibbs. I had known him for some years. I had been in communication with him on this matter for ten or eleven months. (The witness was here cross-examined as to whether he sent his first letter to the Dowager Lady Tichborne through Gibbs, and he said he believed he did not.) He told me I must send her some marks of identity. I sometimes didn't speak to him on this subject for two or three months. He was very anxious I should communicate with my mother. (The will was here read, paragraph by paragraph. First, there was a devise to his wife, whom he said he had married in the name of Castro, "of her lawful dower.") I did not mean that to take effect. Gibbs knew that Cubitt had been in communication with the Dowager on the subject of the claim. I saw at Sydney communications between the Dowager and Cubitt. I solemnly swear not before. Gibbs did not show me any communications, and I was only then aware that Gibbs and Cubitt were in communication. We did not know there was going to be any dispute. There was then a devise in the will to my mother, Hannah Frances Tichborne, of all my property in the Isle of Wight.

The Solicitor-General: I now remind you that the initials of Lady Tichborne were H. F. Knowing her name, why did you put Hannah Frances?

Witness: I suppose on the same principle that I put everything else wrong. I thought putting the name Hannah Frances would make the will bad. I had no property in the Isle of Wight. (In the will, he left to his daughter "all my Wimmering estate in Hampshire, also all property left me by my father, Sir James, at Hermitage, in Dorsetshire.") Roger Charles Tichborne had no property at Wimmering, nor at Hermitage.

The Solicitor-General: You have called Sir James rightly. Why did you not call him John, or Jasper, or any other name?

Witness: Gibbs knew his name, and he knew the initials of my mother were H. F. Sarah or Elizabeth would not have done, as you suggest. I think the Solicitor-General's conduct is very insolent.

The Solicitor-General.—I mean it so.

Witness: I had no property at Hermitage, Dorsetshire. I have a farm called Hermitage, in Hampshire. I can't tell why I put the word Hermitage in the will. I'll swear I do not know of a Hermitage Wharf, Wapping. I went to Wapping on the Christmas Day, 1866, when I arrived. I do not know of a Hermitage-street, or wharf, or bridge. I went to Wapping after I had been to find my mother.

In the next paragraph of the will he left to Annie Bryant, a daughter of his wife before his marriage, £200 a year, and appointed Mr. John Jervis, of Bridport, in Dorsetshire, and Hannah Frances Tichborne, executor and executrix of his will, and in case they died or refused to act, Sir John Bird, of Hertfordshire. He appointed Gibbs guardian to his children, and, in case of his death, Henry Angel, of Dorsetshire.

After a long cross-examination it appeared that Jervis and Angel were real persons, but that Sir John Bird, of Hertfordshire, was a fictitious person. A long cross-examination on this point ensued, in the course of which the witness said he did not know why he had put in Sir John Bird, but that the names of Jervis and Angel were suggested to him.

Witness continued: I cannot tell if Jervis and Angel were intimate friends of Orton's father. He suggested their names. I do not think Orton told me anything but their names. I should have taken your name or any name.

The Solicitor-General: I should have declined the honour.

The witness was pressed hard to say why he chose Jervis and Angel, who were real persons, and then Sir John Bird, a non-existing person, but he could not explain it. He continued: Orton was in Wagga Wagga when I left. I do not know where he is. I am as sure as of my own existence. He may be in this court. He was an intimate friend, and I knew him in various places. I have made inquiries about him. I last heard of him near Aldbury. I've not heard of him since I returned from Australia, or seen him in the flesh. I have no reason to believe he is in London or in England. After I had been to see my mother, I went to Wapping. I had the address of Orton's father. I went to make inquiries. There was no one at the address. The house was empty. I then went into an inn close by. I did not stay long. They gave me some other address, the name of Mrs. Tredget. I went. No one was there. I then went to Ford's Hotel. Tredget was Arthur Orton's sister. I do not remember if I went anywhere else. No, I do not remember any other address. I had not forgotten the Wapping trip when Mr. Giffard examined me. We arrived about 5, went to the hotel, had a cup of tea; in the evening, about 9, went to Beaumont-street, then to Wapping. This was omitted in my examination. My advisers knew of it. I prepared my statement some months ago. I do not know if it is in my statement, I expected my counsel to ask me the question, but he did not. I got back to my hotel about 11. (The witness was here cross-examined on his letter of the 16th or 17th of January to the Dowager Lady Tichborne.) Gibbs had suggested that I should send some token. I wanted £400. I selected two things to satisfy her. The brown mark is on my side. The card case at Brighton was in 1852—about September or October, I think; it might have been August. I do not think it is the only time I lost £1500. It is the only time I lost so much at cards. I decline to answer at what other play I have lost so much. I do not think it's fair that the public should know what I have done.

The Lord Chief Justice: That is no excuse; you must answer it.

Witness: Well, I've lost it eight or ten months ago at the Junior Gun Club.

The Solicitor-General: I mean long ago—before 1867 or 1866?

Witness: No, I did not lose £1500 except on that occasion. I lost it at the Bedford, at Brighton, in a sitting-room. I cannot say who engaged it. It was one of the Broomes—the one that kept the Opera Tavern in the Haymarket; Harry, I think. I suppose he asked me in. I do not know if he slept there; I believe so. I do not think Eccleston or Robins was staying there. I had been with both Broomes about Brighton. I was only three days there. I met them each day. There were other people I do not remember the names of Stadon and James as connected with that case. [The witness was closely cross-examined about the circumstances of his three days at Brighton. It was the race week, he said. He knew Harry Broome before, but not Johnny.] This card business never came into court. I described this as the card case for my mother, not for you. On my solemn oath, I say I never knew that these very men—the two Broomes, Stadon, and James—were implicated in that very year, 1852, in a card case at Brighton for swindling a man named Hamp, and that Stadon and James were convicted at Lewes before Lord Chief Justice Jervis. (On this subject a long cross-examination ensued, but the witness adhered to his first statement. He was asked about a statement made by a certain John Perrin, a butcher, who had been examined on commission in Australia, whether he had spoken to Perrin about this transaction, and whether he had said he was the man who had been robbed by the Broomes, and that that through them he had been obliged to go out of the country, and he said that Perrin's statement, if made, was untrue. Here a long letter written by the Dowager Lady Tichborne to Mr. Gibbs was put in and read, and the witness was examined at great length as to statements of a personal nature, which he was supposed to have made to Mr. Gibbs, and which Mr. Gibbs was said to have conveyed to the Dowager, and especially with respect to a passage in the Dowager's letter to Gibbs, in which she stated that her son Sir Roger never had St. Vitus's dance. He swore distinctly that he had never told Gibbs or anybody else that he ever had that complaint. He did not tell John Perrin that he left England with St. Vitus's dance—that a fright gave it and a fright cured it. He did not know that Orton had St. Vitus's dance). Witness then proceeded:—I never said to Johnson or any one else that I had St. Vitus's dance. I do not know if my intimate friend Orton had it. Upon my solemn oath, I, Roger Charles Tichborne, was in Brighton in 1852. I did not mean by "the card case at Brighton" that case where the Broomes and others were prosecuted for swindling Hamp.

It being now about half-past 1, the witness said he was much exhausted, and he wished for an hour's repose. After some discussion the Court adjourned to half-past 2, at which hour the case was resumed.

The Solicitor-General: The first letter to the Dowager from you is imperfect.

Witness: I did not notice it. (It ends in "send me," and is plainly imperfect.)

A letter was here read from the Dowager to Mr. Gibbs, stating that she could not send money unless the claimant was identified, mentioning his age, that he had been in the Dragoons, and that he ought to come home on one pretext or another, and in it it was stated that Roger never knew his grandfather.

The Solicitor-General: You see the Dowager says you never knew your grandfather. Now, had you sent a message to your grandfather?

Witness: You want to bewilder me. Mr. Seymour was my mother's father, and so my grandfather.

Another letter to Mr. Gibbs was then read, in which the Dowager repeated the statement that Roger never knew his grandfather, and the witness said he could not say if he ever sent a message to his grandfather, and added,—I swear I have spoken of my grandfather as my grandfather, but I have spoken to him as Mr. Seymour.

The Solicitor-General: Name one single person to whom you have spoken of your grandfather.

Witness: It is beyond the power of man to answer this.

A discussion here ensued as to the mode in which the Solicitor-General addressed the witness.

Mr. Sergeant Ballantine objected to the Solicitor-General using the third person—"Did Sir Roger do certain things," &c., and he said it was embarrassing.

The Solicitor-General said his case was that the claimant was not Sir Roger, and he should not call him Sir Roger.

The Chief Justice said it would not influence the jury whatever the claimant was called.

The Solicitor-General: Who first introduced the subject that Mr. Seymour was your grandfather?

Witness: If my mother said that I did not know my grandfather she was mistaken, for I knew Mr. Seymour, and he was my mother's father. I cannot swear that I sent a message to Sir Henry Tichborne. If I did I do not remember it. Mr. Seymour was dead before I left England. Sir Henry Tichborne died in 1821, and Mr. Seymour died in 1849.

The Solicitor-General now cross-examined the witness about the missing sheet in his letter, and asked him if it contained the lost message.

The witness said it was impossible to swear to what he could not remember, but it might suit the Solicitor-General to make him do so.

The Solicitor-General here read a long passage from Mr. Sergeant Ballantine's opening address, in which he alluded to the sealed packet given by the young Roger to Mr. Gosford. He then read passages from the evidence of the claimant, alluding to his supposed intimacy with Miss Doughty, and then in answer to the Solicitor-General, the witness said, I think it was in July. It is quite unreasonable to ask me to fix dates; I never throughout have fixed dates.

The Solicitor-General: Is it true what you stated to Mr. Giffard, that towards the end of 1852 your attentions to Miss Doughty became unacceptable to Sir Edward?

Witness: I call the month of July the latter end of the year.

The Solicitor-General: Is July what you meant by the latter end of the year? You were paying your addresses to Miss Doughty. What did you mean; you said the end of 1852, did you mean July?

Witness: I am in a state of confusion. My counsel put his question in one way and you put it so as to make me think more.

The Solicitor-General; You see this was the young lady to whom Roger Charles, the young man, was paying his addresses. Surely you can tell the time when they became unacceptable to Sir Edward. Was it in the winter?

Witness: It was in July or August. I say nothing about swearing. You know the proper date, I do not. You seem to know everything better than I do.

The Solicitor-General: You must remember whether you were making love in the snow and frost, or when the flowers were out?

Witness: There is one thing which would remind me. (The witness here objected that he was not bound to state the circumstance which would remind him of the date when he became unacceptable to Sir Edward. After some discussion he was told that he must answer the question; and he said, I was paying attention to Miss Hayles, or Ayles, at Canterbury. It must have been about July or August that I discovered that my attentions to Miss Doughty were unacceptable. For a long time the witness was cross-examined on this point, but in the end little or nothing was elicited from him on the answers given in chief on this part of the case. He said that the Solicitor-General was endeavouring to trip him up, and that he must be careful for the future, and such a cross-examination as he underwent to-day is very difficult to be reproduced.) My attentions to Miss Doughty were ordinary attentions. I am unable to define as to what might have been private in the matter.

The Solicitor-General: No, Sir, don't talk of privacy; Miss Doughty is here, and she wants no privacy.

Witness: I don't know that I can tell what led me to believe my attentions were unacceptable. I don't remember if I had any explanations with her before I went. I do not think I ceased to pay attention to her. I believe it is the other way. I might have written to her. I cannot say. What is the good of asking me to swear if I did or not? I believe I did. I might have written while paying attention to Miss Hayles. I do not know that I told Miss Doughty of my attentions to her. I think I had an interview with Lady Doughty, and Sir Edward afterwards spoke to me about it, before I went away. I do not remember what passed. It did not produce much impression on me. I have no doubt I felt it. I do not remember what it did at that time. I can give no further account of what passed. Do you expect me to remember? I saw her (Lady Doughty) in the drawing-room. Miss Doughty was there.

The Solicitor-General: Now, how came it to be broken off? You were a good match, the heir of the Tichbornes; why were you displeasing? Surely you remember that, you remember the donkey and the spigot, and the blue and buff facings?

Witness: You know more than I do. If you keep me all night I can give you no other answer. I suppose I have forgotten; I can't tell. (After much pressure.) I should think that the principal objection was that we were first cousins. It was a certain sort of understanding, not much talk about it, and I went away. I went there not so often, but occasionally afterwards. I put up at Winchester. I was received, but not so intimately. In former years I made it my home, but now I did not. I am getting fatigued and do not understand you. I am not doing myself justice.

The Court then adjourned to Monday, at half-past 10.

MONDAY, JUNE 5.

The cross-examination of the claimant was resumed by the Solicitor-General.

In September and October I was paying attention to Miss Hayles. I think it was her aunt whom she was with. I do not remember her name.

The Solicitor-General: But you remember the patterns of your shirts and colour of your pockethandkerchiefs, &c., seventeen years ago; surely you must remember her name?

Witness: I can't remember Miss Hayle's Christian name. Our acquaintance was very short. I believe she lived in her aunt's house. Miss Hayles was between seventeen and eighteen. I believe she lived with her aunt. There were no other children.

The Solicitor-General: Now, I inform you the mother is alive. Did you ever see or speak to Miss Hayles in your life?

Witness: I swear I have, in her house, in the presence probably of Mrs. Hayles. I'll swear this. After the engagement was broken off, I saw my cousin about the latter end of November or December at Tichborne. I cannot tell what passed. I can't remember what she said or did at the time. It was a mere conversation as to my uncle's behaviour to me. I told her it was impossible I could marry her after what he had said. Really I can't tell what she said. It was at Tichborne; I think at the lower end of the village. I got off my horse and walked alongside of her. I led my horse.

(The witness was here cross-examined as to the circumstances under which he met Miss Doughty, what he said, what she said, &c., but he did not seem disposed to answer the questions very fully.) I was returning from hunting. I was not at Tichborne. I was staying at Winchester. These are matters I am very reluctant to disclose.

The Solicitor-General: There are two parties to be affected; on the part of the other, as I told you before, you are emancipated.

The Lord Chief Justice: It is very important that you should recollect; only you and another person present—do not answer rashly.

Witness: I did not see her after that. I am not positive, but I believe I saw her only once. I wish to correct my evidence on Friday that it was Miss Doughty that broke off the engagement—at least the papers say so. I mean to say that it was I who broke it off by her father's command.

The Solicitor-General here read the shorthand writer's note, from which it appeared that he had distinctly said that it was Miss Doughty who caused the discontinuance of the attention.

Witness: I am pretty well sure I did not see Miss Doughty before I went. Lady Tichborne wanted me to go, and Lady Doughty went to Wardour because she would not meet me. I think Miss Doughty went also. I would not go, for I thought my uncle behaved improperly. I am sure I did not write to Sir Edward, I often wrote to Lady Doughty. I am not certain if I wrote about this matter between the latter end of 1852 and when I went away. It was an engagement, but not known to my uncle, and when he became aware of it he was very angry. I believe I was at Tichborne, but I did not see Miss Doughty. I think the final leavetaking was when I led my horse and talked to her. I promised if she was single when I came back I would marry her. I don't think I had told the Doughtys that I would not come back until my father's death. I told Gosford, and made no secret of it. I believe it was my intention. I am speaking of 20 years ago.

The Solicitor-General: So was what you said about your shirts and pockethandkerchiefs and their patterns.

Witness: The shirts and pockethandkerchiefs seem to hurt your feelings.

The Solicitor-General: On the contrary, they are very satisfactory.

I will not say one way or another whether I told the father and mother of my intended wife that I meant to go for an indefinite time until my father's death. I left Canterbury in February. I had seen Gosford on the subject of my cousin in October or November, at Cheriton. I had made my will, but I cannot say if before or after I was with him. I wrote a paper in his presence, and read it to him, and sealed it up. Not from his dictation. After I had seen my cousin I believe I told her what I was going to do. This was separate from my will, and to be carried into effect if I lived.

The Solicitor-General: Do you remember writing to Mr. Slaughter that your private intentions and wishes if you lived were confided to Mr. Vincent Gosford?

Witness: Yes; and those were they.

(The witness was here cross-examined at some length on a letter which he said he had written. Then a discussion arose as to how much of the letter should be read, and the mode in which cross-examination should be carried on.)

Cross-examination resumed: I left two papers and the packet with Mr. V. Gosford. They did not relate to the same thing; they were in one packet.

The Solicitor-General: Is that what you mean in your affidavit by "a sealed document relating to my cousin Katherine Doughty?"—Yes.

The Solicitor-General; Then, why did you not say two documents?—It implies the same.

(The affidavit was produced, and it appeared that the word was originally documents; the "s" was struck out and initialled.)

I meant by the document the packet; both related to my cousin; whether one or two, they contained my wishes, to be carried out if I lived, and were confided to Mr. Gosford. I do not know whether you want to catch me. I think I left no other except this packet sealed. I kept no copy; it had one object on two sheets of paper. There was mention made of the estate in part of it, and my cousin in part of it. When I came home Gosford asked me if I remembered what I had left, and I told him. I heard him swear first that he destroyed it in 1844 and then in 1859—no, 1854.

The Solicitor-General: I don't want to catch you.

(The witness was here cross-examined on certain affidavits sworn in Chancery, with a view of showing discrepancies and contradictions. Objections were taken, and arguments ensued occupying a considerable time, after which a most painful and exciting scene occurred. The packet was not to be opened except in case of two events. Of these the claimant said in his affidavit he knew one had not happened, and the other he hoped had not happened.)

Witness: One event was my return before her marriage. It must be so. I do not know what I alluded to when I swore that affidavit.

The Solicitor-General: You don't know what event you alluded to in February, 1868, when you swore that affidavit?

Witness: I do not know. I will not swear to it. It was the event of my death, which I knew had not happened. I am under the impression it was my death.

The Solicitor-General: You swore in 1868, and now you are only under an impression.

It's impossible I can remember everything. I have a good memory. I am quite sure it was my death. I won't swear it.

The Solicitor-General: What made you say it was her marriage before your return?

I could not remember.

The Solicitor-General: Now, what was the event which you hoped had not happened?

I am very reluctant to answer.

The Solicitor-General: What was the event? (This question was several times repeated.)

Witness: You will bring it on your own head.

The Solicitor-General: What was the event?

Witness: The confinement of Miss Doughty.

The Solicitor-General: Do you swear that you seduced Miss Kate Doughty?

Witness: I most solemnly to my God swear that I had seduced my cousin.

The Solicitor-General (pointing to Mrs. Radcliffe, who sat immediately beneath him, and opposite to the witness).—This lady?

Witness: I swear I did.

The Solicitor-General: Let it be distinctly understood that Mrs. Radcliffe is here by her own wish. When and where?

Witness: At the mill at Tichborne.

The Solicitor-General: When?

Witness: Not long after I came from Ireland, in July or August, 1852. The latter end of July or the beginning of August.

The Solicitor-General; Before the breaking-off by Sir Edward?

Witness: Yes.

The Solicitor-General: Where is the mill?

Witness: Almost facing the house at Tichborne in the village.

The Solicitor-General: When?

Witness: About 4 o'clock in the afternoon. I was staying in the house. It was about a week or ten days before the engagement was broken off. I left England in March, 1853. She told me she was with child.

The Solicitor-General: What, when you met her in the village?

Witness: No; I must have seen her after she told me in November when I came in from hunting. To the best of my belief, it must have been when I met her in the village.

The Solicitor-General: Was it in November, 1852, or in March, 1853, as you have sworn, that you left the document with Gosford and sealed it?

Witness: It was in November, 1852.

The Solicitor-General: How came you to say you wrote and sealed it just previously to leaving in March?

Witness: After I left England I made no inquiry as to the event which I hoped had not happened. I can't say if I made any inquiry before I left. I spoke of it to Gosford before I left. I don't know if I made any direct inquiry.

The Solicitor-General: Did you leave without satisfying yourself whether the young cousin you say you seduced was or was not about to have a child?

Witness: I don't think I made any inquiry.

A very long letter was here read from Roger Tichborne to Miss Doughty; it was dated February 4, 1852, and began, "My dearest K."; in it allusions were made to a great trouble which had fallen upon them; he expressed his regret at going, his hopes at returning in 1854 or 1855, and promised to reform his conduct. This letter, which he called his confession, was couched in terms evincing the most pure affection for his cousin. Another letter was read, dated the 5th of February, 1852, beginning "My dearest Katie," and in that he said he would not ever drink another drop of spirits. A third letter was read, dated the 23rd of June, 1852, in which he promised that, if he married Kate this year, or within three years, he would build a church at Tichborne to the Virgin in token of gratitude. All these letters the witness said he had written to Miss Doughty.

The Solicitor-General: Now, on your oath, did you ever seduce Miss Doughty?

Witness: On my solemn oath, I did.

A letter was then read, which the witness said was written by him, dated January 5, 1852, from R. C. Tichborne to Mr. Slaughter, the family attorney, in which he stated first of all that he expected to go abroad. He then set out his wishes with respect to the property in case he should die, especially with a view of clearing off encumbrances. His cousin Catherine was to have the free use of Upton House until her marriage, and he said that his private wishes and intentions were confided to Gosford.

The witness was here cross-examined as to the sealed document confided to Gosford. He said it contained instructions for the repair of cottages at Friar's Dene, next instructions in case of Miss Doughty going to be confined, instructions to take full charge in the event of the death of his uncle and his father. He was to make preparations for Miss Doughty to go to Scotland, and to prepare Upton House for her, and a great deal more which he said he could not remember about the estate, and lots of things.

A paper was here produced written by the claimant yesterday, and he was asked to say aloud what he had written.

Witness: I can't tell all that I wrote yesterday. I was very ill. Mr. Spofforth came and told me to write it out. He did not give me any assistance.

The witness was here pressed for a long time to state exactly what he wrote as if he was repeating it from the document. He then said that he wrote:—

"If it be true that my cousin is enciente, you are to make preparations for taking her to Scotland. You are to show her great kindness, and if she remains unmarried, I'll marry her." Nothing substantial is left out, I think there must have been more, for there was a good deal more writing in the document left with Mr. Gosford.

A letter was then read, dated "Paris, January, 1852," from Roger Tichbourne to Mr. Gosford, in which he said the only thing he had left out of his will was about the church about which he had left instructions with him (Gosford). He also said he had not expected his visit to be cut short at Tichborne; but it had always been so since he was a boy. The letters of February 4 and 5, 1852, and June 22, 1852, were admitted by the defendants to be the letters of young Roger who was supposed to be drowned but the claimant said he wrote them.

The witness was here examined on a statement which he had made in writing in 1867 relative to the contents of the documents or document in the sealed packet. It stated, among other things, that the document directed Mr. Gosford to be kind to Kate, who said she was enciente, and I wished the claimant to marry her, but he said he did not believe this. A letter was sent to Mr. Slaughter dated January 5, 1852, from Roger Tichborne, which contained a paragraph which stated that Slaughter and Gosford should act as trustees of his will. The witness said the will was executed on the 16th of June, 1852.

The Solicitor-General: In January, 1852, you speak of your having confided your intentions to Gosford in case you live, and on January 17th, 1852, you write to Gosford and say, "I have made out my will and the only thing I have left out is about the church, about which I have left instructions with you." Now you, on the 22nd of June, 1852, in a letter to Miss Doughty, say you wish to build a church to the Virgin in case you marry her within three years. Did you ever see Miss Doughty after June, 1852?

Witness: On my oath I did see Catherine Doughty after June 22 and between March, 1853, when I left. The letters written on the 4th and 5th of February are mine.

The Solicitor-General: You speak of the bitterness of your trial in February, 1852. Now, do you adhere to your statement as to when the engagement was broken off?

Witness: I do. I have no tattoo marks upon me to my knowledge; none whatever. I have a burn mark. (Witness here bared his arm, and about four inches above the wrist a mark about the size of a sixpence appeared.) I have no idea how this mark came. I have a seton mark on the top of the shoulder. I was examined in consequence of what M'Cann said by Dr. Sutherland. I only showed one ankle. I do not know why I did not show both ankles. I did not know I had marks on both ankles. Dr. Sutherland requested a second examination. I found a scar on the other ankle. I remember the bleeding. I do not know if I had two bleeding marks. (The witness was here examined on the affidavit made in Chancery, as to his places of residence and other matters.)

Witness: I do not remember the name of one book I read with Chatillon—the general books of the day. I left Paris in 1845. I did not begin Latin and Greek until I went to Stonyhurst. He taught me no Latin nor Greek—reading and grammar, and geography, French geography; not a regular course of Latin. I cannot remember the name of one book, I read so many. I wish I could, as you seem so anxious. I did not get above simple division. I went with my father and mother one tour in the south. I knew the Bremonts—Eliza, Charles, &c. I do not remember M. Rouget de Lille, M. Cuissard, M. Jolivert. I think that is a boy whom Chatillon brought to the house. His name was not Adrien. I did not know General Schubert or Mr. Fay, or M. Dupanloup, now Bishop of Orleans. I met the Bishop in 1857.

The Solicitor-General: I mean before 1845. I do not know M. La Foret. I know De Ranza.

Here the witness said he was exhausted, and the Court adjourned.

ENGLISH SALMON.—Mr. Frank Buckland, one of the inspectors of salmon fisheries in England, reports returns received by him showing more than 36,000 salmon caught by net in the Tyne in 1870, and more than 22,000 in the Severn. He estimates that the salmon fisheries of England and Wales yielded in that year between £80,000 and £90,000. 34,457 boxes of salmon, the box averaging 112 lbs., were delivered in Billingsgate in 1870, the total weight being 1722 tons, and the value £212,059. 20,640 boxes containing Scotch salmon, 9211 Irish, 3120 English and Welsh, 626 Dutch, and 852 were from Norway.

QUIETING OF A NEIGHBOURHOOD.—A boy in Detroit has killed sixty-seven of his neighbours' cats to get money to buy his mother a set of false teeth. He has made a quiet neighbourhood where once was a howling wilderness.

SHIPS' MAILS.

Mails will close at the General Post Office as follows:—

For Melbourne and Eden.—By the Dandenong (s.), this day, at 3 p.m.

For Melbourne.—By the Rangatira (s.), this day, at 3.30 p.m.

For Ovalau, Fiji.—By the Meteor, this day, at 6 p.m.

For Maryborough.—By the May Queen, this day, 6 p.m.

For Grafton.—By the New England, this day, at 7.30 p.m.

Custom-House.—Entered Outwards, August 21: Macedon (s.), 532 tons, Captain Pain, for Melbourne; Egmont (s.), 388 tons, Captain Durrell, for Rockhampton.

The City of Hobart (s.), left for Hobart Town yesterday.

The Lady Young (s.) left Brisbane at 10 a.m. on the 19th instant, cleared the South Passage at 3.30 p.m., passed Smoky Cape at 4.30 p.m. on the 20th, and arrived in Sydney at 2.10 p.m. on the 21st. Westerly winds and fine weather prevailed throughout the passage.

The Susannah Cuthbert (s.) crossed the Richmond bar at 3.20 p.m. on the 19th instant, and arrived in Sydney at 10.30 a.m., on the 21st. Experienced fine weather to Port Stephens, from thence strong westerly gales. Her cargo comprises 36,000 feet pine, 576 bags maize, 60 hides, 8 casks tallow, 2 coops fowls, 20 oz. gold, and sundries.

The Helen Macgregor (s.), crossed the Clarence bar, at 4.30 p.m. on Saturday, passed Smoky Cape at 4 a.m. on Sunday, and arrived in Sydney at 3.30 a.m. on Monday. Experienced fresh S.E. winds to Smoky Cape, from thence light westerly breezes. She brings the following cargo—650 bags maize, 113 pieces hardwood, 113 hides, 8 bales skins, 6 casks tallow, 23 bunches bananas, 5 coops fowls, 9 cases eggs, and sundries.

The favourite passenger ship La Hogue has again arrived safely in port, after a most pleasant passage of 83 days. This fine vessel has as usual arrived in beautiful order, and her passengers speak highly of the kindness they experienced from the attention bestowed by her commander and officers. La Hogue left Plymouth at 10 p.m. on the 30th of May, with full cargo and a fair complement of passengers; also a deck freight of one entire horse, and two shorthorn heifers, belonging to Sir D. Cooper; five Hereford Bulls, for Messrs. Mort and Co.; two shorthorn bulls, for Mr. E. Vickery; and two shorthorn bulls and one heifer, for Captain Williams. The wind on leaving Plymouth was light but favourable. Passed Madeira June 6th; the Equator June 25th, twenty-five days out. The Cape of Good Hope was passed July 18th, 48 days from Plymouth; from thence on to the meridian of Cape Leuwin, which was passed August 10th, the winds were very unsteady, but favourable, and the weather comparatively fine. From the Leuwin to Cape Otway she had a very pleasant run of between six and seven days. Reported ship at the Otway at daylight on the 17th, 78 days out. Passed Cape Howe at daylight on the 19th, with a fine westerly wind and clear weather; when off Twofold Bay the wind fell to a calm, and from there on to Sydney had the wind varying from north to west with very clear weather.

La Hogue, from London, reports having spoken the barque Spence, from London, bound to Melbourne, on the 7th June, 9 days out, in latitude 30·10 N., longitude 19·11 W.

H.M.S. Rosario got up steam yesterday morning, and proceeded outside the Heads for shot practice, returning again to her anchorage during the afternoon.

H.M.S. Blanche anchored on Saturday last under the lee of Gabo Island, but sailed again during the night with a northerly wind. At 2 p.m. on Sunday it was blowing a fresh gale from W.S.W., with heavy squalls.

By telegram, we learn that several vessels bound north passed Twofold Bay on Sunday.

Omitted in the imports per Borealis: 113 packages, D. H. Davis.

DEPARTURES.

August 16.—Feronia, for Newcastle.
August 17.—Ecliptic, William Ackers, for Newcastle.

The ship Marquis of Argyle, which has already made several voyages to this port from China, has again arrived in Hobson's Bay after a rapid passage. She brings in all 247 Mongolians, two of whom, a rare importation, are of the gentler sex; and she is also freighted with a large general cargo for this port and Sydney.—Argus, August 15.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 22, 1871.

Simultaneously with the opening of the Exhibition last year, we received intelligence of the war between France and Prussia. Since that time a mighty inundation, carrying ruin and death, has rolled over the fairest land in Europe, and left it mutilated, bleeding, and desolate. This land has enjoyed a fertile season and a rich abundance, while a great nation has suffered the interruption of its labour, and the neglect and spoliation of its husbandry. We have advanced, while war has thrown back a country which once was making rapid strides in every form of cultivation and improvement. We have indeed been disturbed by rumours of war, and military affairs have compelled attention which we would rather have wholly consecrated to the arts of peace. But we are still able to say that no hostile ship has entered our harbour, and that no enemy has yet invaded our shores.

The prospects of France in reference to sustenance are indeed deplorable. An evening paper called Le Soir, now before us, published on the 16th June, states that the corn harvest everywhere in France is unpromising, in consequence of the continuance of bad weather. It is indeed suggested by M. Thiers that a large sum may be requisite to purchase foreign corn. One-third of France, comprising some of its most fertile districts, is in the hands of the Germans. The terms of peace require the French Government to supply 500,000 soldiers with sustenance until the payment of the money they have demanded. This they have to do, although from one-third of France a very small portion of taxes can be collected. Thus all causes seem combined to add to the weight of this frightful invasion; and the ruin of the country would be inevitable were the people less energetic, or the land less fertile. M. Thiers only asks for the establishment of order, and in all other respects has confidence in his country. The money markets of the world are open to the French Government; and no one seems to doubt either the ability to obtain what is necessary, or to pay the interest. The condition of agriculture, however, is one subject of deep anxiety. Over large districts the desolations of war have destroyed a large portion of the farming population, consumed their dwellings, ruined their implements, and left the survivors without cattle or seed. They complain that the waste of manure is irreparable, that the land is consequently infertile, and, moreover, that the seed has been eaten. The goodwill of kindred nations has partly supplied this deficiency, although the effect of private charity must always be small—nothing to meet the wants of a nation. It is suggested that this may lead to a great improvement in agriculture. The French farmer usually scatters his seed with the hand. It is proved from English statistics that this wastes an enormous proportion. There is, however, the difficulty, not to be readily overcome, of providing implements and machinery necessary to economic reform. Had there been an abundant harvest generally in Europe, deficiencies might have been readily supplied; but the loss of hands, both among the conquerors and the conquered, must have diminished agriculture, and, although the Germans may be able by French money to supply their wants, this cannot increase the production. It can only enhance the price. The harvests are not very promising in some of the countries where grain is usually sought. It was common after wars of so terrible a nature for famine to complete the work of destruction. We may however hope that commerce, so often declared to be the enemy of the agriculturist, because it carries his corn from the market where it is not wanted to where it is in request, will save every part of France from the most terrible and fatal of visitations. Every one must remember the awful picture drawn by Bismark of what Paris was to be if it delayed a few days to open its gates, and with what admiration the forethought of the great diplomatist was proclaimed throughout Europe, when, like Joseph, he sent waggons laden with food to avert so dire a catastrophe. We never heard of much of those provisions reaching the population: but as soon as the obstacles were removed, corn and meat poured into Paris by the aid of commerce, ever watchful and enterprising, and starvation was averted. Throughout the late insurrection, the want of food was not a prominent subject of complaint. We may therefore hope that whatever sacrifices may be necessary to obtain supplies, and whatever impoverishment may be the result, the millions of people who have been only victims of this war may escape the calamity which has been so much dreaded. M. Thiers speaks of the pressure of this garrison of 500,000 as a heavy weight on the Government.

But he refers in his speech to another consideration still more formidable—constant danger of the renewal of the war. He is alarmed lest some outburst of unreasoning hatred should involve the nation in new collisions, and give excuse for prolonged occupation and new exactions. The German army of 500,000 may become so attached to the soil and the fairest part of France, that they may be unwilling to quit the country. They may find there a new Poland; and from incapacity for self-support they may demand a new partition. Indeed there is a serious aspect beyond the mere support to such garrison—its remaining long enough to forget the way home. Napoleon used to talk of the flag of France making a tour of Europe. This achievement has not yet been rivalled by the occupiers of the fairest part of French territory—the Champagne country. We have indeed to hope that they will postpone the Battle of Dorking some little time longer, and be satisfied with their present cantonments. In sober seriousness, it is a great danger for any country, and according to the old formula of our law courts we may add—"may God send it a good deliverance."

The revival of trade in France is announced with great confidence by M. Thiers. He states that orders are accumulated in Paris which cannot be completed; that all the chiefs of industry—meaning the manufacturers—are pressed for supplies; that the whole population therefore may be set in motion if they can be withdrawn from agitating questions as to forms of government, which can only be settled when France is mistress of herself. This indeed is the policy of M. Thiers, and the reason for his accepting the awful responsibility which rests upon him. Let us leave, he says, our internal controversies till they can be arranged without civil war; let the republican remain a republican, and the monarchist prefer royalty; but let them withdraw from the existing Government the responsibility of deciding between them. It is thus M. Thiers resisted the claims of Count Chambord and the pretensions of the Princes of Orleans, and, while declaring his preference for constitutional monarchy, condemned that party which was disposed to establish it without constitutional guarantees, or to overturn the republic by intrigue and violence.

M. Thiers, however, expressed his opinion of the English Constitution in the following terms, which we translate from the French official journal of the 9th of June:—

"I have thought all my life that the Government which my country might desire, and if I had the power which no mortal has ever possessed, I would give to my country, that which to the measure of my force I have laboured for forty years to assure to it, without being able to succeed, is the constitution of the Monarchy of England. Gentlemen, I find that they are free—nobly and grandly free at Washington, and that they have done grand things; but I find, also, that they are equally free at London; and permit me to say that, perhaps, they are more free than at Washington. (Emotion on the left; assent on the right and centre.) That is, that at London the Government has been placed at the same distance from the passions of the low as from the passions of the lofty. (General emotion.) Never in any country, in any time, has the Government been placed in a region where reason has had a greater dominion, or where reason has been less troubled. But, gentlemen, for my part, I have always said that the princes who rule must submit to the conditions of this form of government; if they will absorb the government themselves and assume its responsibility in times so agitated as ours, they will incur the loss of their thrones."

The Exhibition of Agricultural Industry—although more limited than the general display of last year, and therefore to many persons perhaps less attractive—will be admitted by those most competent to judge to be in many respects very satisfactory, and to be well calculated to answer all the purposes it was designed to subserve. It is impossible for those engaged in rural occupations to visit the Show and come away without deriving benefit, while even those whose immediate pursuits do not interest them in details as to the breed of stock or the culture of cereals, find much to admire in the results of the industry of others, and much to encourage them in witnessing the marks of steady colonial progress.

Exhibitions of this kind are adapted to improve the colony in two respects, in both of which it needs improvement, namely, to quicken enthusiasm, and to increase knowledge. At times, and especially in dull times, a spirit of apathy is apt to creep over people. There seem to be no immediate prospects of doing great things—no very strong encouragement to special exertions—no great inducements to go out of the beaten path. Rural settlers living comparatively isolated lives, and remote from the excitement of great cities, are somewhat apt to plod on dull and beaten ground, unquickened by any genial enthusiasm. In this colony especially, where our people are spread over an immense area, and where from peculiar circumstances there are no great inland cities, there is nothing but the Press to correct the effects of solitary life and to quicken the mind into a sympathy with the progress that is going on elsewhere. But the Press, valuable as it is even to the dullest, and doubly useful to those who can absorb and assimilate its teachings, is not a substitute for the appeal to the eye, or the personal intercourse with those engaged in kindred occupations, and who can furnish a model and suggest a line of action. There is no substitute anywhere for bringing people together. It has a potency which no quiet appeal to the intellect can ever equal, and it stirs the emotions to an extent that deepens all the impressions made upon the mind. Men are not merely the creatures of intellect, and those who would govern them simply by adapting everything to their thinking powers, leave out of their calculations one-half of the evidence of which the problem consists. Nothing can be done in the way of progress without stimulating the intellect; but, at the same time, the way to get at it and stir it up to a wholesome activity is very often to approach it on the side of the emotions. To excite surprise, pleasure, emulation, resolution—to associate the idea of success with that of effort, and to stimulate hope by exhibiting the results of judicious effort, is to awaken the motive power which lies in men. It is to the capable laggard what the stoker's poke is to a half-choked furnace fire—it lets in fresh oxygen, stimulates combustion, and increases the energy of the whole machinery.

This sort of quickening is periodically necessary to prevent people from going to sleep, or jogging on too contentedly in old well-worn ruts. Developing the resources of the country has become a favourite and almost a cant phrase. But the way to develop the resources of the country is to develop the resources of the people who live in the country. The resources of nature are practically infinite, but they appear to be stagnant as long as the energies of man are stagnant. Quicken him, and all nature seems to be quickened too. It is through the development of man that we are to discover the possibilities of nature. It is in fact human progress that is the secret of the world's progress, and notably so of late years. Science is teaching us how to discover and harness to our own uses the forces of nature. Education is enabling the whole community to appreciate the position and understand its advantages. Thousands of minds are now at work on practical problems where only hundreds or tens were similarly occupied a few years ago, and deciphering open secrets that have long been hidden mysteries. The physical world remains as it was, but the capabilities of mankind to operate upon it are multiplying in a geometrical ratio. Nor is there any visible termination to this path of progress, or any limit to be placed on the achievements possible to human ingenuity. To take our own industrial sphere: no man can say how much this colony is capable of, what population it can sustain in comfort, what amount of wealth may be annually drawn from its soil. All we know for certain is that the prospect is at present unlimited, and that we have undeveloped opportunities before us sufficient to provoke the most sanguine enthusiasm.

But enthusiasm alone is not enough. To excite it without regulating and instructing it is sometimes to do mischief, for ill-directed energy is occasionally worse than no energy at all. Side by side with a quickened zeal it is necessary to have an instructed intelligence. In all departments of our industrial activity we require more knowledge, and a wider diffusion of knowledge. Precisely because our progress must depend on a judicious manipulation of natural forces it is necessary that we should have a more general knowledge of those forces, and an increased skill to handle them. A great deal of money has been wasted in the colony by enterprise unassociated with the necessary skill, and there has followed upon failure an undesirable and an unnecessary discouragement. More expertness in treating the soil, more knowledge in the breeding and training of animals, will produce corresponding results. The time has gone by when a man can be either a prosperous farmer or a prosperous squatter without knowing anything of his business. Douglas Jerrold once described the fertility of the Australian soil by saying that if you tickled it with a hoe it would laugh with a harvest, but the farmer who proceeds on this presumption will soon find very little to laugh at. The soil soon ceases to be fertile to the man who has no fertility in his own intelligence, as the finest tool is soon blunted in the hands of an unskilful workman. We must cease to reproach either the soil or climate, if the annual product is below our expectations. In the co-operation of man with Nature, if the former is at fault, the latter is generally backward.

Every intelligent man learns something from his own work, and often learns more from his failures than his successes. But even the most observant and reflective man finds his knowledge increased, as well as his powers of observing and reflecting improved, by comparing the work of others with his own. Comparison is a fruitful source of progress in almost every pursuit; and no one now-a-days can afford to dispense with this help. No one is so superior to others that he has nothing to learn; no one is so inferior that he has nothing to hope. And periodical exhibitions, which display the results of careful industry by the most successful colonists, are great teaching institutions to those who are learners, and diffuse an amount of useful knowledge not appreciated by those who simply call an Exhibition a "show," and see in it nothing more.

Boring at the Lachlan Swamp.—The boring operations at the Lachlan Swamp, to which reference was made in a paragraph which appeared about a fortnight ago, is being proceeded with by the City Engineer. The bore which was put down near to the Randwick road, has reached sea level, that is, a depth of about 163 feet from the surface. This is the place where it was expected, from former surveys, that rock would have been found at a depth of about 23 feet. Rock has not yet been reached, although a bed of strong pipeclay, mixed with sand, has been come upon. It is somewhat singular that when the tube had been put down about 75 or 80 feet the water within it rose to a height of about four feet above that on the outside the tube, thus showing that the internal water was acting in sympathy, as it were, with some higher source. When the tube had gone a few feet further down, the internal and external waters were at about the same level. Another bore has been put down at a spot near the engine-house on the Randwick Road. Here it was confidently expected that rock would have been reached at a depth of sixteen feet. The rods and tubes have already gone through fifty-eight feet of pure drift sand without any sign of rock manifesting itself. A further bore will be commenced this week at a place about three hundred yards to the north of that at the engine-house. The surveys of the Corporation land to the westward of the Botany Road, and near the Botany engine-house, have been completed, and plans and sections prepared. The ground was thoroughly tested by boring. This work has been done in view of an enlargement of the sheet of water known as the engine-pond. In order to carry out the proposed works at this part of the watershed, it will be necessary to cut another channel, in order to divert the impure waters, commonly known as the "black waters," from their present course. In testing the ground, a thick layer of excellent clay of a bluish colour was unexpectedly found overlying the rock at a few feet from the surface. The discovery of this clay at this spot is a matter of considerable importance, as in carrying out the proposed enlargement of the pond a considerable quantity will have to be used and having it in abundance so close at hand will save a considerable expenditure of money. At the outer end of the engine-pond the rock crops up a little above low water mark, and the formation of new embankments will be found comparatively easy.

Jurors Fined.—The following gentlemen were fined yesterday, at the Court of Quarter Sessions, Darlinghurst, for non-attendance as jurors:—Bancroft Boake, photographic artist, of Lavender Bay; William Berkshire, grocer, of Darling-street, Balmain; John Fisher Cripps, publican, of George-street; and Charles Brady, farmer, of Manly Cove.

Architecture and Fine Art.—The inaugural meeting of the Society for the Promotion of Architecture and Fine Art is to be held this evening. His Excellency the Earl of Belmore, patron of the society, will be present.

Sydney Infirmary.—Report for the week ending 21st August, 1871:—Admitted—23 males, 9 females; total, 32; discharged—13 males, 12 females: total 25; died—4 males, 1 female: total, 5. Remaining in house, 150 males, 72 females: total, 222. Subscriptions, &c., received, £30 8s.

Astronomical.—Mr. Ellery has communicated to the Melbourne Age that one of the most prominent results yet derived from the working of our great telescope is the certainty that some of the large nebulæ of this hemisphere are undergoing very marked and rapid changes. That the celebrated nebula about the star Eta Argus had undergone considerable mutation since it was observed by Sir John Herschel, was, we believe, first pointed out by Mr. Le Sueur, and the scientific importance of the fact struck the mind of Herschel. He said, if true, it amounted almost to a revolution in our knowledge of physical astronomy. What Mr. Ellery is now able to add, to the effect that certain other nebulæ are changing not only greatly, but "rapidly," is equivalent, if his words have been duly weighed, to an astronomical "sensation."

Panoramic Views of Egypt and the Franco-Prussian War.—There was a numerous assemblage last evening, in the hall of the School of Arts, to view Mr. Charles' panorama of scenes in Egypt, and in the Franco-Prussian War. The views, divided into two series, have evidently had much care taken in their preparation; and they have been very neatly, and, seemingly, faithfully pourtrayed. The first series comprises views of Grand Cairo, Alexandria, St. Jean D'Acre, of Thebes, the Pyramids, the chief mosques and ancient temples of Egypt, and of the scenery on the Suez Canal; while the second gives representations of the principal battles in the late campaign between France and Prussia, views of the cities involved therein, and several incidental pictures connected with the war. Mechanical effects have in several cases been introduced—evidently with considerable success. Among them are representations of the Suez Canal by day as well as by the light of the moon; the battle of the Nile—in the Bay of Aboukir—with the blowing up of the French man-of-war L'Orient; the lighting up of the mosque of Sultan Hassan for great festivals; a view by night of a French railway station during the war; a very effective representation of the blowing-up of the bridge at Kehl; a moonlight view of the Chateau Cliquot; Strasbourg on fire; and a soldier's view of home. This portion of the entertainment concluded with a copy of Gustave Doré's tableau of the Marseillaise, which was fittingly accompanied by the popular French air of that name, well rendered by Miss Beresford, who possesses considerable vocal ability, and sang several other songs at intervals during the evening. A number of cleverly-trained monkeys were next shown. One went through the ordinary performances by acrobats on the flying trapeze with striking precision and agility; a second excited applause by feats on the tight-rope; a third went through the miniature of a duel combat with swords; and the three combined treated the audience to medleys on various musical instruments. Though the panoramic views were deservedly applauded, this last portion of the entertainment appeared to be most popular. Mr. Charles the proprietor presided at the pianoforte.

People's Concerts.—One of these popular entertainments was given last night in the Temperance Hall, Pitt-street. Mrs. Cardwell discharged the duties of accompanist with her usual success, and the ladies and gentlemen who took part in the programme sang the pieces allotted to them with credit to themselves and to the satisfaction of the audience.

AUSTRALIAN ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAMS.

ARMIDALE.

Monday.

This is the day for nomination of a member of the Legislative Assembly in the room of Mr. Charles Thomas Weaver, resigned. The Returning-officer opened the proceedings at the Court-house, at noon. Rumour had been rife as to the probable candidates. Messrs. Henry C. Dangar, Richard Hargraves, and Montague Marks had all been mentioned. Mr. Dangar had received an influential requisition, but declined to stand. Mr. Hargraves' supporters hoped up to the last moment to be enabled to induce him to come forward, but were unsuccessful. Mr. Robert Palmer Abbott, solicitor, was proposed by Mr. Lewis Markham, and seconded by Mr. Thomas B. Fitzgerald. Mr. Samuel Henry Terry, formerly member for Mudgee, was proposed by Mr. William Cleghorn, and seconded by Mr. James Anderson. Mr. Abbott was well received, and stated that he would not have come forward had either Mr. Dangar or Mr. Hargraves been in the field. Mr. Cleghorn spoke for Mr. Terry, promising that in all probability he (Mr. Terry) would address the electors in person this week. The show of hands was in favour of Mr. Abbott, and a poll was demanded for Mr. Terry. The polling day is Monday, the 28th instant.

TUMUT.

Monday.

A diabolical attempt was made to murder Mr. M. Quilty, on Saturday evening last, in his own house. At half-past 10 o'clock, some person, unknown, fired a shot at him from the street. The ball took effect in the right side of his head, and is not yet extracted. He is, however, perfectly conscious; and every hope is entertained of his recovery. An indignation meeting was held this evening; and a sum of £200 was collected as a reward for the apprehension of the villain who attempted to assassinate him.

TERARA.

Monday.

Mr. James Warden was returned unopposed. He gave a splendid dinner in the evening; all the influential men of the district were present. He asserted, in the course of a speech which he delivered, that he was an independent supporter of the present Government. He also said that he was in favour of fostering native industries, of immigration, and of a reduction in wages—but he was not disposed to make the law in relation to land more liberal than it was at present.

EDEN.

Monday.

A murderous assault was committed on Saturday night, on a man named Holder, who was stabbed in the back, and otherwise seriously wounded. He is in a dangerous state. Three men have been arrested on suspicion.

GRAFTON.

Monday.

Carr's Creek sugar mills commenced crushing on Friday afternoon. Mr. Muir sold, to-day, a ton of bright yellow counters to Mr. W. B. Campbell, of the Clarence River stores. It is estimated that the mill will turn out a ton of sugar per day. The yield is said to be good.

BRISBANE.

Monday.

A fire occurred in Albert-street on Saturday night. It totally destroyed the stables occupied by Messrs. Cobb and Co., as well as Mr. Mayne's stable, a shop, a dwelling-house, and several outbuildings. His Excellency the Governor was present, and assisted in the direction of efforts to extinguish the fire. The property consumed was only partially insured.

The final return for Western Downs has been received. For Ramsay, 213; for Wienholt, 212; and for Pechey, 137.

MELBOURNE.

Monday.

Snowdrift is freely backed for the Metropolitan.

On Saturday night, Mr. John George, son of Mr. Hugh George, of the Argus, narrowly escaped being run over by a train. He fell down a cutting near Prince's Bridge, and was picked up insensible, but he is now recovering.

We had heavy showers of rain yesterday, but the weather is now fine.

Breadstuffs are quiet, at £16; wheat, 6s. 10d. New teas move off satisfactorily. Sugars are more active. Maize is steady at 3s. 8d. Currants are selling at 6½d.

Arrived.—You Yangs (s.) and Blackbird (s.), from Sydney.

A later telegram states—flour is easier, and sales have been submitted to under £16; wheat, 6s. 9d.; malt, 8s. 6d.; Hennessy's brandy, 27s. 6d.; Java sugars ex Esmeralda, all faults, realised £22 to £24; Mauritius counters, £32 5s.; white crystals, £37 10s.; Natal sugars, counters, £30 to £33.

John Kenworthy and William Hunter were flogged in gaol to-day. This is their second instalment, and they suffered severely.

Numerous bakers have been proceeded against for adulterations.

Betting on Little Dick is less firm for the cup: Aruma is backed at 7 to 1.

We have Mauritius dates to 28th July. There have been considerable purchases for India and England, whence advices are admitted at higher rates than for Australia. An advance of from 10 to 20 per cent. had been made in whites. Nothing loading for Melbourne.

ADELAIDE.

Monday.

Wheat is depressed. Buyers offer 5s. 1d., sellers ask 5s. 2d. The price must give way before transactions can take place. Holders talk of shipping to England.

Abbotsford.—It is somewhat singular, says the Evening Mail of the 16th, that we have in Ballarat two persons identified, as it were, with Scott and Abbotsford, the seat upon which the great master of fiction lavished his wealth, and in which he extended his hospitality to so many men and women whose names are great in English annals. The one is Mr. Adam Smith, whose father built the noble structure; the second one, "Jock," his surname is unknown to us, who remembers working in the garden at Abbotsford in 1829, about five years before Sir Walter's death.

Separation.—Northern Queensland.—The Rockhampton Bulletin of the 15th reports that the annual meeting of the electors of Rockhampton, to receive the report of the Separation Committee for the past year, and to nominate a new committee, would have submitted resolutions to it relative to the functions and constitution of the committee—two of these would be by Mr. O'Kane: No. 1 affirming "that it has been and is part of the functions of the committee to oppose the return of candidates for the Rockhampton and Port Curtis constituencies adverse to immediate separation at Dawes Range," and to do all in their power to secure the return of Separation candidates. No. 2 declares that the members for the constituencies above-named should be, and continue to be members of the committee during a dissolution or other parliamentary interregnum, only on condition that they advocate separation at Dawes Range. The third resolution is to be submitted by Mr. James Smith, and has for its object an increase in the number of elective members of the committee from eleven to twenty-one. Mr. O'Kane's motions, though ostensibly seeking merely the affirmation of general propositions, are obviously intended to have a bearing on the late action of the committee, and are so constructed that their adoption would be, in effect, a vote of censure on the committee.

New Evidence in the Tichborne Case.—According to the Melbourne Daily Telegraph, important evidence in the Tichborne case went home by the last mail. Great stress, it will be remembered by readers of the proceedings in connection with the trial, has been laid on the fact that the alleged Sir Roger has been unable to corroborate his explanation as to how he escaped the loss of the vessel in which he left England. His assertion is that he, with some other survivors, was picked up at sea in one of the ship's boats off the Brazilian coast, and brought on to Melbourne. No trace could hitherto be found of this arrival of castaways, and the circumstance has always told strongly against the claimant. The reading of the newspaper reports has, however, freshened some people's memories in Melbourne, and by the last mail statutory declarations were transmitted to Messrs. Baxter, Rose, and Norton, of Westminster, solicitors for the claimant, affirming the fact that certain seamen and others picked up off the Brazilian coast did arrive in the port at the time stated by the alleged Sir Roger. A clue having been obtained, the matter is now under further investigation, and other material evidence on the point will be transmitted by the next mail in time for the trial, and in time also, it is believed, to exercise a great influence on the result.

Dr. de Jongh's Light-Brown Cod Liver Oil.—Dr. Edward Smith, F.R.S., Medical Officer to the Poor-Law Board of Great Britain, in his work "On Consumption," writes:—"We think it a great advantage that there is one kind of Cod Liver Oil which is universally admitted to be genuine—the Light-brown Oil supplied by Dr. de Jongh. It has long been our practice, when prescribing the oil, to recommend this kind, since, amidst so much variety and uncertainty, we have confidence in its genuineness." Sold only in capsuled imperial half-pints, pints, and quarts, by all chemists, druggists, and storekeepers. Sole consignees, Ansar, Harford, and Co., 77, Strand, London.—Adv.

OUR BRISBANE LETTER.

AUGUST 19.

THE official landing of the new Governor, mentioned by me in my last, was followed up by a civic demonstration on Thursday. All things considered, it was by no means wanting in the elements of success. The banks, warehouses, and shops were all closed; there was a general cessation of business; the display of bunting was general; and the crowd of sight-seers was larger than any I have seen here for many years past. The Marquis of Normanby had announced that he would hold a levée at noon on that day, and a partial holiday was accordingly given in Government offices, but it was at first announced, I believe, that the Civil servants of subordinate ranks would be allowed to do no more than march to the levée and back to their offices again; in fact, the authorities declined to give even the semblance of a holiday. Much dissatisfaction was expressed at this, and, although the order was subsequently relaxed so far as to give a half-holiday, there were a large number of Civil servants who made themselves conspicuous by their absence. Somehow or other, people mixed up the levée and citizens' demonstration together in such a way that many did not know how far the Government or the Corporation were concerned; but the whole affair passed off with great éclat. Early in the forenoon, the Caledonian Society, the two Orders of Oddfellows, the Foresters, the Fire Brigade, and the United Trades' Society, joined in a procession and marched through the principal streets to the Town Hall, where they were joined by the Mayor and Corporation, and a number of citizens, and proceeded to Government House. The demonstration was thorough, and equal to anything we have yet seen in Brisbane for order and decorum, although the crowd was greater than usual on public holidays. The levée was the largest yet held here, there being 250 presentations, besides the large number of those who were fortunate enough to have cards of entrée. Addresses were presented by the Mayor and Corporation of Brisbane, and also of Warwick; the Foresters, Oddfellows, the Brisbane Total Abstinence Society, the Diocesan Synod, and the Congregational Union. The replies were, as a matter of course, of the usual conventional type, but all of them expressed his Excellency's gratification at being appointed to the Government of Queensland, and his earnest hope that, during his period of office, he might have the happiness of conducing, in some degree, to the progress and prosperity of the colony. In the reply to the address of the Brisbane Corporation, his Excellency pointedly expressed his intention to maintain "a strict impartiality between all parties." After the presentations were all over, those who took part in the procession, and the vast crowd assembled, were in hopes that the Marquis would make his appearance on the balcony and deliver a short address; but, after waiting some time without seeing his Excellency, the procession re-formed and returned to the Town Hall. Some strong expressions of disappointment were to be heard on all sides; but it appeared afterwards that his Excellency had intended to show himself to the people, but the procession had left the grounds before he was able to do so. On arriving at the Town Hall, some 1600 of the citizens partook of a luncheon provided by the Corporation, and the new Governor's health was enthusiastically toasted. In the evening, the Mayor entertained his fellow aldermen and a number of his friends in honour of the occasion at the Town Hall, when everything passed off satisfactorily. Some excursions to the bay were organised in the afternoon to enable those who wished to view the two men-of-war, but the threatening aspect of the weather prevented many from availing themselves of the opportunity. The officers and crew of the Clio were excessively obliging, and allowed their visitors—many of whom had never before seen a man-of-war—to inspect the vessel from stem to stern. Altogether, the citizens have every reason to be gratified with the success of their gala day, and his Excellency the Marquis has expressed himself in warm terms of satisfaction. I regret to say that the accident which befell the Marchioness on the voyage up still keeps her ladyship confined to her residence, and when she landed it was found necessary to carry her in a cot from the wharf to Government House.

The elections are now decided, save those for the districts of Maranoa, Leichhardt, Mitchell, and Kennedy, the polling for the two last-mentioned not taking place until the first week of next month. The Premier had a most unqualified triumph for Port Curtis, his opponent (Mr. Dick Melbourne) making but a very sorry show, especially in Rockhampton, where his influence was supposed to be greatest. This fact was all the more noticeable, because when Mr. Melbourne contested Rockhampton with Mr. Archer, our present Agent-General, he was more formidable, and polled a considerable number of votes. In Western Downs, the position of the old members, Messrs. Ramsay and Wienholt, was too strong to be carried by Mr. Pechey's assault, and the latter has again met with a not dishonourable defeat. If Drayton and Spring Creek could have decided the question, Mr. Pechey would have won; but the electorate is a very extensive one, and the pastoral interest is very strong at those polling-places situated outside of the centres of population. Political excitement has now toned down, to a great extent, and people are quietly waiting to see what will be the issue of the party contest, and how the new Governor will comfort himself in the peculiar and somewhat difficult circumstances in which he finds himself placed at the outset of his career.

A rumour has gained extensive currency that Mr. Pring, one of the members for North Brisbane, and also one of the Opposition, will be put forward by the Government as their candidate for the Speaker's chair. The electors do not like this, nor do they altogether believe it; but Mr. Pring has been questioned on the subject, and his answers have, to say the least of it, been rather evasive. I can scarcely credit the rumour myself. If, however, it should turn out to be true, and Mr. Pring should be proposed as Speaker, there will be a "considerable muss." Some of our most influential electors have, I am told, determined to wait upon him, and endeavour to extort a plain "Yes" or No." If the former, Mr. Pring will find he has turned over a hornet's nest; if the latter, he will retain the confidence he would otherwise forfeit.

A sale of forfeited runs in the districts of Warrego, Maranoa, Kennedy, Burke, and Leichhardt was held in Brisbane, on Thursday, and is described as one of the most successful sales of this description yet held. There were thirty-four runs offered, twenty of which were disposed of, and many of them fifty per cent. above the upset price. The result of the sale is looked upon as very satisfactory by those who have an interest in stations in the outside districts.

A rather ludicrous journalistic incident has just provoked some comment her. About a year ago, a second paper, called the Observer, was started in Ipswich, and appeared twice a week. On the 16th, the proprietors announced that, after the 31st of this month, they should discontinue the publication of the paper, because the Secretary for Lands had ordered the Surveyor-General not to advertise land sales in the Observer's columns. The paper had spoken of the Minister pretty freely during the Ipswich election, and the proprietors hint that they have been immolated in consequence.

The newly-formed mission to the aborigines on Fraser's Island is exciting some attention on the part of the more philanthropic, but really not half as much as it deserves. Mr. Fuller (the pastor in charge) and his wife live on the island, and they have really to depend on chance donations of provisions. The pastor has attempted cultivation, and not spared his own personal labour, but all to no avail, the soil of the island being altogether unsuited to cultivation. Mr. Fuller has "prospected" on the main land for an eligible site, as the centre of his self-denying operations, but many of the supporters of the mission believe it would be a mistake to remove the mission from Frazer's Island. The rev. gentleman has been supplied with a boat by his friends, and many persons have made liberal contributions in kind, but the supplies of provisions have been somewhat precarious, and it is very properly thought to be too much to expect that Mr. Fuller and his newly-wedded bride—zealous as they both are—should literally spend their lives in such an arduous service without even the chance of any reward save that which they hope to receive hereafter. An attempt is accordingly being made to give renewed vitality to the movement, and the Maryborough Committee, which acts in conjunction with that formed in Brisbane, has guaranteed £50 per annum towards the missionary's salary. Subscriptions are to be actively solicited, as also donations in kind suitable to Mr. Fuller's requirements. Thousands of pounds are subscribed in order that the Gospel may be given to the natives in the South Seas, but we seem to forget that there are objects of compassion in our midst who have a greater claim upon our sympathies, because we have dispossessed them of the soil. Mr. Fuller carries on his labours under the auspices of the Queensland Aboriginal Missionary Society.

Having read in the Herald the statement made by the man Hume, a confine in Parramatta Gaol, relative to alleged traces of Leichhardt, I was reminded of a circumstance of which I became cognizant as far back as 1856-7. At that time many ticket-of-leave men were sent up here from Cockatoo, and one of them—whose name would be well remembered in Sydney if I were to mention it—informed several persons, myself amongst the number, that there was a person in Cockatoo who knew where to lay his hands on Leichhardt, whom he declared he had seen and knew to be alive. If I recollect right, the prisoner's name was Garbutt, and my informant seemed strongly inclined to credit the story, which he had written down in a bulky roll of manuscript. Like Hume's story, Garbutt's was tolerably circumstantial. An inquiry was, I believe, held at the time, and I think that Garbutt was very near obtaining his liberty, but the peculiar nature of some of the conditions he imposed led to suspicion, and no active steps resulted from his statement. Probably some of your readers may be able to recall the facts; indeed your files at the time contained a number of letters on the subject. I merely allude to this to show that Hume's is not the first case in which a convict has endeavoured to make capital, as it were, out of the loss of poor Leichhardt.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY'S EXHIBITION.

OPENING DAY.

THE Agricultural Society has hoisted its flags and opened its gates. The day so long looked forward to by the members, especially those who have been most arduously employed in making preparations for the comfortable accommodation of stock and other exhibits, and who are naturally desirous of witnessing the result of their labours, is at length arrived. Moreover, it came with smiles, and graced the occasion with all the charms a day is capable of gracing that which occurs within its sphere. The greater part of the live stock was admitted to the Park on Friday and Saturday, and the judges had got over a considerable part of their work before the shades of evening descended upon the close of the week. But some of the exhibits, such as dogs and poultry, and some perishable products, were not brought in till yesterday, and were then subjected to the scrutinising eye of the jurors. Until late in the day, too, were the shorthorn exhibitors kept in suspense with respect to their fate, and it is hardly to be supposed that all of them will be satisfied when the list of awards reaches their hands.

There was a vast deal of difference between the opening day in 1870 and that which is just passed. The former occurred after a fortnight of unparalleled hurry and confusion—a fortnight of postponement, at the end of which, in consequence of bad weather, the managers were no further advanced than they were at the beginning, and the last hammer had not ceased upon the decorations when the visitors were announced. This time nearly everything was ready for the reception of the public at the hour announced for the opening. The weather having been fine for a long time previous, no hindrance had been put in the way of the erection of sheds in the park; and the framing of these and the stalls in the pavilion was commenced so early, that all was ready for being fitted long before it was wanted.

Before the knock of the public was heard at the Society's gate a good opportunity was presented for looking round. The appearance of the pavilion was the first object to secure attention. The interior effect is better than it was last year. The space is greater, and the proportions of the building better appreciated. The idea of locating cattle, horses, sheep, and poultry in this place has been sufficiently condemned. Those that denounced the notion gave three distinct reasons why it could not be done: 1st, the smell would be abominable; 2nd, the noise would be intolerable; 3rd, the danger would be formidable. A little patience and practical experience has however quietly and successfully disposed of these objections. No more of them is heard. The smell is not observed, the noise is no greater than people who know about such things come prepared for, and as for the danger let those say who moved about among the docile occupants of the stalls what it amounts to. What is possible in England is possible in New South Wales, and this was all that was contended. With care concerning cleanliness and ventilation there need be no unpleasant tainting of the air. Nothing could exceed the sense of repose exhibited by the cattle upon the floor, while in the galleries the poultry clarioned their delight to the ferruginal span above.

Everybody agrees in considering the cattle "the best department of the show." "Nobody ever saw anything better"—at least in this continent. The classes are well-filled with fine specimens, and the rivalries of Shorthorn, Hereford, and Devon are abundantly supplied with fresh fuel. These breeds of the old country are here well maintained; and quite as much is heard concerning the merits of Booth and Bates on the show ground at Sydney as on the show ground of the Royal Agricultural Society of England. The horses are less numerous than last year, though quite as good, and the fat cattle are a standing advertisement for colonial grass—for most of them are "grass-fed," whatever that may mean.

It is to be doubted whether the dogs and the pigs agree to their neighbourhood; but they have not been allowed a choice. Their native privilege is not denied them, however; they are permitted to bark and grunt their protests to their hearts' content. The dogs are admirable, and well-housed, the building in which they are being intended to hold the paraphernalia of the show snugly stowed away.

The arrangements for refreshments are improvements upon last year. There is less pretence but more comfort. Last year it was a pig-stye in a palace—this year one can get a comfortable and cleanly and cheap meal under canvas.

Of agricultural machinery there is a select and interesting display. The season is adverse to horticulture and farm produce, and the show wanted one element of interest, which will be there to-day, namely the exhibits from Queensland, which are numerous and good.

The Exhibition was formally opened at the Exhibition Building yesterday, at noon, by his Excellency the Right Hon. the Earl of Belmore, in the presence of a large concourse of spectators. The neighbourhood of the Prince Alfred Park was on the qui vive long before the simple and unpretentious ceremony; flags flying, music playing, crowds collecting, and omnibuses and private carriages moving rapidly along. Amongst those outside the enclosure and within were many country visitors, drawn to Sydney by the numerous attractions of this Exhibition week. The holders of "Ceremonial tickets" assembled in the entrance hall and main building at about half-past 11, in order to receive his Excellency. The Governor and the Countess of Belmore, with Captain Beresford, A.D.C., and Mrs. Beresford, arrived at about five minutes to 12, and were received by the principal officers and stewards of the society. There was a guard of honour—a detachment of the S.V.R.—in attendance. His Excellency and Lady Belmore and suite entered the structure by the southern door.

The general appearance of the interior was, of course, not so brilliantly attractive as last year, but the admirable neatness of the sheep and cattle-pens, together with the highly appropriate details of the ornamentation of the edifice, as a whole, could not fail of being viewed with much satisfaction; and this very pleasing effect was greatly enhanced by the magnificent selection of plants grouped round the great fountain, and north of that beautiful object. As the Hall gradually filled, the spectacle became a very animated one; but the incessant crowing up in the galleries proved at times rather bewildering to those who were not much accustomed to such shrill and cheerful sounds. The horses, sheep, and cattle, however, were remarkably quiet.

Amongst the company present at the opening (besides his Excellency and suite) were the Hon. George Lord (the Colonial Treasurer), the Hon. J. Docker (the Postmaster-General), the Hon. J. B. Wilson (the Minister for Lands), the Hon. W. C. Windeyer (the Solicitor-General), the Hon. Sir T. A. Murray (President of the Legislative Council), the Hon. E. Deas Thomson, C.B.; the Hon. Sir William Macarthur, M.L.C.; the Hon. John Hay, M.L.C.; the Hon. James Chisholm, M.L.C.; the Hon. Charles Campbell, M.L.C.; the Hon. William Busby, M.L.C.; the Hon. William Byrnes, M.L.C.; the Hon. W. B. Dalley, M.L.C.; the Hon. John Richardson, M.L.C.; the Hon. G. H. Cox, M.L.C., the Hon. Robert Owen, M.L.C., the Hon. Henry Moore, M.L.C., the Hon. S. D. Gordon, M.L.C., the Hon. T. W. Smart, M.L.C., the Hon. Mr. O'Shanassy (from Melbourne), Mr. George King, M.L.A., Mr. S. Samuel, M.L.A., Mr. W. R. Piddington M.L.A., Mr. W. Macleay, M.L.A., Mr. G. A. Lloyd, M.L.A., Captain Onslow, M.L.A., Mr. Robert Smith, M.L.A.; Dr. Brookes, M.L.A., Mr. M. Alexander, M.L.A., Mr. John Sutherland, M.L.A., Mr. Campbell, M.L.A., Mr. Neale, M.L.A., Mr. G. W. Allen, M.L.A., the Bishop of Grafton and Armidale, the Very Rev. Dr. Forrest, the Rev. J. B. Laughton (the Moderator of the Presbyterian Church), the Rev. Mr. Gaud, Captain John M'Lerie, I.G., Mr. Under-Secretary H. Halloran, Mr. Under-Secretary John Rae, Mr. S. H. Lambton, secretary to the Post Office; Mr. W. W. Stephen, Under-secretary for Lands; Monsieur L. F. Sentis (French Consul), Mr. E. M. Paul (Russian Vice-Consul), Mr. F. Macnab (Consul for the Netherlands), Captain W. H. Eldred (Consul for Chili), Mr. Ernest O. Smith (Vice-Consul for Portugal), Mr. Howard Reed, V.P.; Mr. Stephen Cox, V.P., Mr. R. L. Jenkins, V.P.; Mr. J. Lackey, V.P., Mr. H. Beit, Mr. P. N. Trebeck, the Very Rev. the Dean of Sydney, the Rev. Mr. Bode, the Rev. Canon Stephen, the Rev. William Woods, the Rev. Thomas Smith, the Rev. Rabbi Davis, Mr. P. F. Adams (Surveyor-General), Mr. H. Maclean (the Sheriff), Mr. W. A. Duncan (Collector of Customs), Mr. James Barnett (the Colonial Architect), Captain Shadforth, Mr. Jules Joubert (secretary to the A. S.), Mr. C. Russell (the Colonial Astronomer), Mr. Charles H. Woolcott (the Town Clerk), Mr. Francis Bell, C.E. (City Engineer); Aldermen Goold, Macintosh, Palmer, Roseby, Andrews, Oatley, and Raphael; Messrs. Thomas Barker, S. A. Joseph, William Wallis, J. L. Montefiore, L. Hordern, J. R. Fairfax, Dr. Garran, D. Ramsay, E. T. Beilby, S. Bennett, Major R. P. Raymond, Richard Hill, H. Badgery, R. Nott, J. G. Ross, J. M. May, E. L. Montefiore, J. H. Thomas, C.E.; John Alger, Captain Hovell, Dr. Bennett, Dr. Nathan, Mr. Chisholm, Mr. H. Kennedy, Mr. Garrett, Mr. Henry Lumsdaine, Mr. S. Lyons, Dr. Macfarlane, Mr. Uther, Mr. Teale, Captain Philipps, Mr. Hanks, Mr. Humphries, Mr. Charles Tompson, Mr. Joseph Thompson, Mr. Durham, and many others whose names were unknown to the reporters. A considerable number of ladies also were present.

His EXCELLENCY, having entered at the southern door, proceeded up the central aisle and then visited the cattle, horses, sheep, and other farm produce in the side aisles. He afterwards returned to the fountain, where in a loud voice (but without any further ceremony) he declared the Exhibition to be open. The assembled gentlemen, at the call of Captain M'Lerie, gave three hearty cheers for the Exhibition, three cheers for his Excellency, and three cheers for the Countess of Belmore.

The Exhibition continued to be visited by large numbers throughout the rest of the day.

His Excellency and the Countess of Belmore revisited the Exhibition during the afternoon, and were present when the horses were paraded and the shorthorned cattle judged.

SECTION I.—HORSES.

Although the exhibits in this section—generally the most important section at an agricultural show—were not so numerous as they were last year, there were amongst them some of the best stock which the colony could produce. There were ninety-three entries altogether, and the animals were principally of the heavy draught breed. Fifty-one were throughbred, including horses for all purposes.

In Class 1, for stallions, three years old and over, there were four entries. Mr. Andrew Town's bay horse Tarragon again carried off the challenge prize (silver medal). Last year he carried off the first prize and challenge cup and Lord Belmore's special prize of 25 guineas, and Messrs. T. Dawson and Co.'s prize for the best blood stallion. Tarragon is a bay horse, twelve years and eleven months old, and was bred by the late W. Clarke, of Coolah, by New Warrior out of Ludia. He won the champion race at Melbourne; and also the Metropolitan Stakes at Randwick with 10 st. 5 lbs. on his back. He is rather a short backed horse, but a fine muscular animal, with great length of rein, well-set withers, fine round barrel, and is what may be termed a well-ended perfectly taught horse. The second prize in the same class was awarded to Volunteer, a dark brown horse, 13 years of age, bred by Mr. John Cobcroft, of Singleton—by New Warrior out of Miss Langar—and is now the property of Mr. Alfred Cobcroft, of Singleton. He possesses well-set wide shoulders, and wide joints, and parts indicative altogether of almost perfect symmetry, and has also a good expressive countenance. The judges must have had some little difficulty in respect to the awards. The other horses shown in this class were Alfred Cobcroft's Captain Cook, a four-year old chesnut, by New Warrior out of Miss Langar; and Alexander Bowman's Kyogle, a brown horse, 12 years old, bred by Mr. Tindale of the Clarence River, by William Tell out of Cassandra.

In Class 2, for two-year-old stallions, there was but one entry, Mr. Andrew Town's Clansman, but for some reason he was not exhibited.

In Class 3, for one-year-old stallions, there were three entries. Mr. Town's Crown Prince, however, was not on the ground. The first prize was awarded to Mr. Town's Tarabran, one year and nine months old, bred by G. W. Lawson of Mudgee, by Tarragon out of Fairy. He bears a very great resemblance to his sire, the most marked distinction between them being his white fetlocks; but he has a similar neck and length. His back his short, and he has great strength of loins like old Tarragon, and stands high for a colt. He has a frank good-tempered expression; his colour is good, being a bright bay; he is a powerful horse, has well-proportioned legs, great length of pastern, and his limbs are well set. He is own brother to Illumination, a celebrated horse, and his owner has refused an offer of 300 guineas. He has only just been broken in. He was awarded first prize. The second prize was given to Alexander Bowman's The King of Hearts, a chesnut horse bred by R. Dines, of Singleton, by Lord of the Hills out of Queen of Hearts. He is scarcely so lengthy as Tarabran, but possesses the appearance of good development, with a good round barrel, well-ribbed home, great strength of joint, and altogether is a remarkably fine shaped colt. Mr. Francis White, of Edinglassie, had a splendid one-year-old, which was omitted from the catalogue. This was Meteor, a light chesnut, with two hind feet white, and white face, got by Lord of the Hills out of Little Queen. The animal was highly commended by the judges.

In Class 4, for mares, three years and over, there were four entries. The first prize was awarded to Andrew Loder's The Nun, a brown mare about 13 years old, bred by the exhibitor, by New Warrior out of Gazelle (both imported). She is an Arab mare, standing about 15 hands; possessing splendid withers, well-set neck, pretty head, clean legs, and well ribbed home, and is a short, compact, roomy mare; she is with foal. A special prize was given by the judges. The second prize was given to Queen of the Hills, a brown mare, the property of Mr. Alexander Bowman, of Oaklands, near Singleton; she is of a brown colour, nine years old, and was bred by Mr. R. Dines, by Lord of the Hills out of Queen of Hearts. She is in foal; and is a roomy powerfully built animal. Mr. Bowman's chesnut mare Eugenie, fourteen years, bred by Mr. G. P. Bowman, by Warwick out of Lady Alice, was highly commended. In the same class Mr. Andrew Town, of Richmond, exhibited his ten-year-old mare Lady Mary, a brown with grey, bred by the late W. Town, by Warwick out of Marmion.

In Class 5, for two-year-old fillies, there were two entries—Mr. Andrew Town's Xarifa, a brown mare, bred by C. W. Lawson, of Mudgee, by Tarragon out of Fairy; and Mr. Frederick Clissold's Nutmeg, a dark grey, two years and three months, bred by E. K. Cox, by Yattendon out of Esperance. Xarifa was not shown. A first-prize was awarded to Mr. Clissold, of Ashfield, for Nutmeg. The animal possesses considerable breeding, and is a well-formed mare for her age; she is clean-legged and well backed.

In Class 6, for one-year-old fillies, there were three entries. The first prize was awarded to Mr. Andrew Town for a chesnut filly (unnamed), one year and ten months, bred by the exhibitor, by Kingston out of Ludia. She is a very compact mare, and remarkably well finished for her age, and bids fair to become a really first-class animal. James Readford's bay filly Duchess, one year and ten months old, took second prize. She was bred by the exhibitor, by Kingston out of Brown Bess. She has black points, a short neck, remarkably powerful forearm, well-formed shoulders and barrel, and is altogether a fine powerful animal. In the same class Mr. E. B. Parnell exhibited Manto, a bay filly, one year and nine months old, bred by N. C. Reynolds, by Lord of Lynne out of Lady Flora.

In Class 7, for mares and foals, there were but two entries—Mr. Andrew Town's Heather Bell, and Messrs. J. White and A. A. Dangar's Grand Master. Heather Bell obtained first prize. She is a bay mare, twelve years old, with a bay filly eight months twenty-nine days, and was bred by Mr. A. Mackellar, of Richmond River, by Waverley out of Cressida. Although she was an exceedingly well-bred animal, and a credit to her exhibitor, we understand that she was not the best specimen which Mr. Town could have sent. He has several mares that he would have sent in preference, but they have either just foaled or are about to foal, and he was thus precluded from sending some of his best stock in this class. Messrs. White and Dangar's Grand Master is a very fine well-bred animal, of a chesnut colour. She is an imported animal, having been bred in Kent.

In Class 8, for Arab stallions of any age, there were but two entries.—Mr. James White's Ameer, which obtained first prize, and Mr. A. A. Dangar's Bournou, which won second prize. Ameer is a really splendid animal; he formed a great attraction last year, and again this year. He is a bright bay, nine years old, and was "purchased by Captain Tweedie by his agent, Aji-hahmed, from the Bedouin Desert, from the Black Tents." He is a very different animal to the Arabians which the Innocent Pilgrim met with in his travels. Bournou is a very fine, though very old horse, being twenty-one years of age. He was at one time a beautiful grey, but is now a white. He was bred by the King of Wurtemburg, and has an excellent pedigree.

In Class 9, for heavy stallions of three years and over, there were five entries in all. The pure-bred draught stallion Conqueror, the property of Mr. W. Ward, of Bankstown, again carried off the principal prize. The colour of the animal is a remarkably fine dapple grey. He has a masculine expression of countenance, neck well set on to chest; the chest is broad, deep, and expansive; girth, 7 feet 3 inches; height, close upon 17 hands; width of arm, about 28 inches; below the knee, 11½ inches; round the knee, 18 inches. He is a remarkably broad-backed round-barrelled horse. In symmetry he is almost perfect, and is, in short, one of the best, if not the best, horses in Australia. He has very fine action, and canters like a pony. He obtained the Royal Agricultural Society's silver medal at the annual show held in 1864 at Newcastle-on-Tyne, as being the best draught three-year-old; and he was backed against any horse of his age in England, for strength, action, and symmetry. He also won the silver medal at the Singleton show in 1866. The second prize in this class was awarded to Prince William, a dapple grey, belonging to Mr. James Maxwell, of Sussex-street, Sydney. Prince William is 3 years off, and was bred by T. Chesland, Pitt Town, by Wiltshire Champion. His general proportions are very good; he has remarkably good symmetry, and is a fine, broad, thick-boned animal, about 17 hands high. Mr. Thomas Bowd's Black Prince, Messrs. W. and C. Durham's chesnut Clinker, and Mr. D. Ramsay's Black Dentill were also competing in this class. They were, without exception, exceedingly fine stock.

In Class 10, for two-year-old heavy stallions, there were five exhibits. The first prize was taken by Young Briton, a bright bay, with three white feet, two years and six months old, belonging to Mr. John Dunstan, of Woodside, Wilberforce. He was bred by his exhibitor by True Briton out of Brownie. He stands about 17 hands high, and is a wonderfully well-developed horse for his age; has great length of rein, good oblique shoulders, short back, great depth of girth, broad shin bone; is remarkably powerfully jointed. The second prize was given to Camden, a bright bay, two years seven months old, belonging to Mr. J. F. Downes, of Brownlow Hill. He was bred by Samuel Wheeler, of Westbrook, by Sampson (imported) out of Diamond. He stands about 16 hands high. He is a long-reined horse, has his neck well set on, good chest, very broad back, is remarkably short between the knee and fetlock; has powerful joints, great depth and breadth of joint, and is in fine healthy condition; he is, in fact, a good-ended, well-set, symmetrical cart colt. His sire took first prize at the same age in England. Thomas Holland's (Windsor) Matchless, W. Ward's Farmer's Glory, and A. Town's Prince competed in this class.

In Class 11, for one-year-old heavy stallions, there was only one exhibit, and this was Mr. John Jackson's (of Windsor) Young Briton, which was awarded first prize. He was bred by exhibitor, by True Briton out of Violet. He was a wonderful little horse, and, taking his points altogether, it would be somewhat difficult to match him.

In Class 12, for heavy mares, three years old and over, there were eight exhibits. The first prize was awarded to Lucy, a bright, or rather a dapple bay, five years old, the property of Mr. John Elliott, of Kiama. She was bred by her exhibitor, by Captain (imported) out of Kate. She stands over 17 hands, is long below and rather short above. Her general symmetry is excellent; the chest is excessively deep and wide, and the neck is well set on; she has a good broad back, with well turned ribs; and altogether she is a powerful roomy mare suitable for breeding first-class heavy draught horses. The second prize was awarded to a black aged mare, belonging to Mr. George Watts, of North Richmond. She was bred by her exhibitor by Old Tom out of Glenelg; sire and dam were both imported. She is a low set, lengthy, well-developed, roomy, well-knit mare, with a powerful forearm.

In Class 13, for two-year-old heavy fillies, there were five entries. Mr. John Dunstan, of Wilberforce, won the prize with his filly, Poppet, a bright bay, two years and seven months old. A better animal it would be difficult to find. Her size and symmetry were something extraordinary. Mr. Thomas Holland's (of Cornwallis) Polly, a light bay, two years and nine months old, took second prize. She was bred by exhibitor, by True Briton out of Smiler, and is a fine well-made mare, though less in size than Poppet. Mr. Andrew Town's Diamond, and Mr. Joseph Butler's Magnet, also competed in this class. Mr. John Verone's (of Largs) Farmer's Glory was entered by mistake in this class instead of with the entires. But for this mistake, we understand, he would have taken a prize, as the judges considered him the best two-year-old on the ground.

In Class 14, for one-year-old heavy fillies, there was only one exhibit, Miss Briton, a bay, belonging to Mr. William Atkin, of Mangrove Creek. A first prize was awarded the exhibitor.

In Class 15, for heavy mares and foals, there were two exhibits. Mr. Andrew Town was awarded first prize for his mare Blossom. She is a chesnut mare, seven years old, with a foal by Atlas, seven months old, bred by Mr. W. Farlow, of Richmond, by Champion Hero out of a dam by Scotch Jock. She is a fine well-bred mare. Farmer's Daughter, a grey mare, aged, belonging to John Piggott, of Bowral, took second prize. This mare was bred by C. Throsby, but her pedigree is unknown.

In Class 16, for heavy draught geldings, there were three entries, no less than two of them having been awarded a first prize. Mr. Andrew Town's Jolly, an aged grey, bred by the late W. Town, of Richmond, by Invincible, out of young Peg, took one of the first prizes. He is a powerful, well knit, deep-chested, short-backed, short-legged horse, with high withers and remarkably fine expression; and combines great freedom of action with great strength. A black-brown horse, unnamed in the catalogue, belonging to Mr. C. H. Jones, of Pyrmont, also got a first prize. He is a nine-year-old, a very good horse, very much after the style of Town's, but neither so broad nor so deep; a very fine sample of a cart horse. The second prize was given to Mr. C. T. Clark, of Bathurst, for his bay horse Young Champion. He is a good substantial kind of horse, with black points, rising five years, and was bred by E. Taylor, of Wowingragong, near Forbes, by Jimmie out of Gipsy.

In Class 17, for stallions of any age, best adapted for getting farm horses, six horses were entered. The first prize was taken by Mr. John Mudd, of Largs, with his horse Farmer's Glory. This horse is a dark roan in colour, of the Suffolk Punch breed, and is four years three months old. He was bred by the exhibitor, by Magenta out of Polly. He stands over 17 hands; and is a very fine horse in good condition. He appears, at first sight, to be a rather low horse, but this is owing to his proportions, as he is in reality one of the highest on the ground. He has a long nicely arched neck, with a remarkably small head; has fine expression of countenance, and is a very powerful long-ended horse; he is excessively wide and deep in the chest, has short well-proportioned legs, and is in fine healthy condition. The second prize was taken by Mr. Andrew Brown, of Lithgow, for his dark brown dapple horse Sissance. He is twelve years old, and was bred in Scotland, and is a good specimen of the Clydesdale breed. He has great length of rein, the legs being well set forward on a finely formed chest. He is short above and long below—longer, in fact, than any other horse of his height in the same class, has powerful joints, broad bone and hairy legs. Mr. Donald M'Leod's Farmer's Friend, Mr. John Webster's Young Sampson, Mr. W. Atkins's Black Prince, and Mr. S. H. Terry's Hero competed in this class.

In Classes 18 and 19 there were no entries.

In Class 20, for coach stallions of any age, there was only one exhibit, Mr. S. H. Terry's Carelaverock, and to this animal was awarded a first prize. The horse is a black, or dark brown, ten years old, and was bred by Mr. John Maxwell, of Narragool, by Comet out Scot of Glenden's Trumpet.

In Class 21, for coach mares of any age, Mr. George Oakes, of Quiraing, Woollahra, was the only exhibitor. He showed Tasmania, a bay mare, eight years old, bred by the Rev. Mr. Quilter, of Tasmania. A first prize was awarded for this exhibit.

In Class 22, for horses or mares for single harness or dogcart (to be tried on the ground), Mr. Michael Calahan exhibited his light bay mare Romeo, and obtained first prize. She is a very nice well-made mare, and not unworthy of a few competitors. She was bred by Luster, of Campbelltown, by Champion out of Jessie.

In Class 23, for horses or mares, for single harness buggy (to be tried on the ground). There were nine entries. Mr. George Hill, jun., of Bent-street, Sydney, obtained first prize for his bay cob (unnamed in the catalogue). Breeder and pedigree unknown. The horse stands about 15 hands, and has black points, and is a remarkably well-made cob. He possesses a well-formed chest, high withers, and is rather long in the barrel, with clean legs and well shaped hock, and well proportioned between the joints. He has about the most perfect action of any horse in Sydney. His trotting capabilities were exhibited to the admiration of all. The second prize was given to Mr. S. M. Brown, of Pitt-street, Sydney, for his grey gelding Don. He was bred by R. L. Rossi, of Goulburn, and is nine years off. He is a well-made horse in every way, and has good symmetry, with length of rein and short canon bone. He is much after the style of the American trotters. Mr E. H. Woodhouse, of Mount Gilead, exhibited Miss Denmark, which was highly commended by the judges. Had this animal been exhibited in Class 22, she would have taken a prize. Mr. John Fewing (of Windsor) Mr. J. Hacket (of South Creek), Mr. W. Moses (of Windsor), Mr. Sloper Cox (of Potts' Point), Mr. John Ferguson (of Marulan), and Mr. H. A. Thompson (of Potts' Point), also exhibited some excellent well-bred animals in this class.

In Class 24, for pairs of carriage horses, there were three entries in this class. Mr. George Oakes, of Woollahra, had two pairs, and was fortunate enough to obtain a first prize for each pair; if the cards that were nailed over the stalls by the judges are correct. They were very good animals, and well matched. Mr. B. Clayton, of Appin, also exhibited a pair in this class.

In Class 25, for hunter's horse or mare (leaping qualities to be tested on the ground), there were five exhibits in this class. The first price went to Mr. Alexander Ryrie, of Micilago, for his bay gelding Magnet, an 8-year old. The animal stands about 15 hands 3 inches high, and is thoroughbred; his neck is well set; he possesses high withers, and a good round barrel; and is a well-knit, broad, and deep-jointed horse, with very short fetlocks; he is very broad in the canon bone; he is very fast, and an extraordinary clean leaper. The second prize was given to Mr. G. F. Want, of Woollahra, for his bay horse Kilbride, a ten-year-old. He is rather a heavier built horse than Magnet, lighter and longer across the loins, and a powerful made animal, with a great deal of style. His pace would seem to show that he has received less training than Magnet, but he took his leaps very cleverly. Mr. A. F. Smart (of Fairfield), Mr. E. B. Parnell (of Castlereagh-street), Mr. H. P. Airey (of Bankstown), exhibited in this class.

In Class 26, for hackney, horse, or mare, combining symmetry and paces, there were seven entrances. Mr. W. J. Dangar, of Neotsfield, Singleton, took first prize for his brown gelding Minimus, nine years old. Minimus is a well-bred animal, with a small prettily-shaped head, wide forehead and nostrils; long rein, high light withers, with a proportionate width and depth of chest; the barrel is somewhat short, the legs are well set forward in chest; the knee is broad and deep; bone broad and thick, with well-developed tendons; his symmetry generally is excellent, and his paces, like his form, are pretty and pleasant in the extreme. The second prize was carried off by Mr. Joseph Butler, of Fitzroy-street, Surry Hills, who exhibited Baron, a bay horse, about seven years old; this animal is a splendid walker; his formation is much lighter than the animal which took first prize. Mr. J. Oakes, Mr. J. Stein (of Smithfield), Mr. C. T. Richardson (of Darling Point), Mr. J. Ferguson (of Narulan), and Mr. J. Elliott (of Kiama), also exhibited in this class.

In Class 27, for ponies not exceeding 14 hands, any age, there were six entries. The first prize was given to Mr. T. Lee, of Woodlands, Bathurst, for his chesnut pony Pepper, bred by himself; the second was given to Mr. S. V. Solomon, of Horningsea Park, Liverpool, for his bay pony Jerrywong; and Mr. E. H. Woodhouse's Pompey was highly commended. Mr. Brown (of the Ultimo), Mr. Fongworth (of Ghinni Ghinni), and Mr. F. W. Hill (of Phillip-street, Sydney) also exhibited in this Class.

In Class 28, for ponies not exceeding 12 hands, there were three exhibits. The first prize was given to Major, a pony the property of Mr. H. C. Hughes, of Moreton Park. This exhibit has been omitted from the catalogue by mistake. Mr. Sloper Cox's King Pippin was highly commended.

The following is the list of awards:—

SECTION II.—CATTLE.

The cattle now in the Park and in the building form by far the largest and most valuable collection ever brought together in New South Wales, or indeed, we may say, in Australia. The Shorthorns are in great force, the total number exhibited being 120. The numbers shown in some of the classes range as high as thirty. The Herefords are not quite so numerous, but they are little, if anything, inferior in point of excellence. The Devons are chiefly represented by animals from the Tocal herd. The merits of the animals in several of the classes are pretty evenly balanced, and in many of the Shorthorn classes the judges hesitated long before awarding the prize. The whole of Saturday and yesterday was taken up in judging the Durhams. We append a list of the prizes, reserving a description for another opportunity.

PRIZE LIST.

CATS AND RATS.—A CURIOUS CASE.—A rather curious case is reported as likely to be sent to the New Zealand Supreme Court from Patea for trial. It seems that a settler there, being troubled by rats, which devoured his produce, imported a number of cats to stay the plague. This they did, killing a number of the rats, and driving the rest on the property of a neighbouring farmer. The latter, not approving of this result, threatens proceedings against the owner of the cats for damages. There is some talk of a compromise being effected by the cats being divided amongst the two famers with the object of driving the rats on the property of a third neighbour; but in any case, in the present temper of the parties concerned, it seems likely that a jury will ultimately have to settle matters.

RAYNES, TREEVE, and CO.

DISTRICT OF WELLINGTON.

FOR ABSOLUTE SALE, by order of the Executors of the Estate of the late John Maxwell, Esq.

That MAGNIFICENT FREEHOLD and PASTORAL PROPERTY known as NARROOGAL.

MORT and CO. have received instructions from the Executors to sell by public auction, at their Sale Rooms, Phillip-street, Circular Quay, at 11 o'clock,
THIS DAY, 22nd day of AUGUST,
THE BEAUTIFUL ESTATE OF NARROOGAL, consisting of 6797 acres of the FINEST LAND in the DISTRICT OF WELLINGTON; together with the LEASE OF THE NARRAGOOL RUN, adjoining the Freehold.
THIS MAGNIFICENT PROPERTY is situate at the head of the Wellington Valley, with the Bell River running through its centre, and was the first land taken up in the district.
It is bounded on the north and east by the estate of the late Sir W. Verner, and on the south and west by the runs of Messrs. Lord and M'Nevin, and others.
The head station is distant from Orange 47 miles, and from Wellington 12 miles.
As a pastoral property Narroogal is perhaps unrivalled in the Western Districts. THE RICHNESS OF THE PASTURAGE and the fine sheet of water formed by the basin of the Bell, combine with the beauty of the landscape and the salubrity of the climate to impart a value that can scarcely be estimated.
On the Freehold are a SUBSTANTIALLY-BUILT BRICK HOUSE, a new WOOLSHED, and extensive STABLES, STOCKYARDS, and HORSE PADDOCKS.

After the above will be sold the WHOLE OF THE NARROOGAL WELL-KNOWN SHEEP, about 8000, more or less (including the choice ram flock), the purchaser of which will be allowed the use of the runs and woolshed till after shearing.
Also,
The SPLENDID STUD of IM HORSES, all bred in the paddocks, where they can now be inspected.
Mr. E. A. Smith, the Superintendent in charge, will show the property, of which an early inspection is requested.
Further particulars can be obtained from
MORT and CO.

BATHURST.

DENTON HOLME ESTATE.
This valuable
AGRICULTURAL AND PASTORAL PROPERTY contains by
GRANTS 3840 ACRES, on Charlotte Vale Creek, about six miles from the TOWN OF BATHURST,
near the late Colonel Stewart's, Mount Pleasant, and other valuable estates.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from the attorney for DONALD LARNACH, Esq., to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, on FRIDAY, 1st September, at 11 o'clock,
The above well-known valuable country estate, 3840 ACRES, close to the proposed BATHURST RAILWAY STATION, together with all the improvements thereon; at present let to STANLEY HOSIE, Esq., of Caloola, under an old lease, expiring at the end of next year, at a rental of £200 per annum. A large area of the estate is naturally clear, and about 500 acres are good agricultural land, a portion of which is sublet at a rental considerably above what the whole realises on the original lease.
☞ In a few months this property will be within a few miles of a railway station, which will remain for many years to come the terminus of the Western line. The importance of good freeholds so favourably situated cannot be too highly estimated, and as the proprietor's instructions, recently received from England, are to realise Denton Holme, the special attention of graziers and others is directed to the opportunity now afforded for obtaining on favourable terms a really superior block of country.
Terms—one-third cash, residue may remain on the property at a very low rate of interest.

Plan at the Rooms.

SUSSEX-STREET,
adjoining the north boundary of the Cloth Factory and Flour Mill, a few feet from Bathurst-street.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, on MONDAY, 28th August, at 11 o'clock,
The following city freeholds.
LOT 1.—All that piece of land having a frontage of 45½ FEET TO SUSSEX-STREET, with a depth of over 100 feet, in which is that MASSIVELY-BUILT DWELLING-HOUSE, No. 251, SUSSEX-STREET, with EXTENSIVE cellarage and COMMODIOUS STORE-ROOM, suitable for a PRODUCE BROKER or any business requiring spacious accommodation in this great thoroughfare, close to the principal wharfs, mills, foundries, and engineering establishments of the city. The premises are built of brick on stone foundations and are in perfect order, fit for immediate occupation. The residence contains verandahs back and front, hall; drawing-room, 20 x 16; dining-room, 24 x 16; large kitchen, 27 x 14; 8 bedrooms, extensive cellarage, large yard, with entrance from Barker's-lane, &c. A considerable portion of the extensive back premises, together with the cellars, could be utilised for stores, fronting a distinct entrance by a side passage from Sussex-street, and extending thence to Barker's-lane at the rear.
LOTS 2, 3, and 4 have each 18 feet frontage to Barker's-lane out of Duncan-street, with a depth of about 70 feet. On these lots a substantially-built stable of 4 stalls, with coachhouse, provender room, &c. They will be sold in one or three lots, to suit purchasers.
LOT 5 has a frontage of about 30 feet to Barker's-lane, with a depth of about 63 feet, on which is a 4-stall stable and other premises.

Plan of subdivision at the Rooms.

TITLE unquestionable; full particulars can be obtained on application to W. W. BILLYARD, Esq., Solicitor, Hunter-street.

TERMS—Half cash; half may remain on the property at 7 per cent.

UNRESERVED SALE.

NEWTOWN.
KINGSTON ESTATE.

Corner Block of Land, being lots 20 and 21, of section 5, as per plan of Kingston, having the following frontages:—
86 FEET to BEDFORD-STREET,
39 FEET to DENISON-STREET, adjoining the TOWN HALL, formerly known as the SCHOOL OF ARTS.

BLOCK OF LAND, in the same estate, having the following frontages:—
82½ FEET to AUSTRALIA-STREET,
82½ FEET to DENISON-STREET,
and
181½ FEET to LENNOX-STREET, extending to a lane at the rear.
☞ This Block is immediately opposite Mr. Conley's KINGSTON HOTEL.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, on MONDAY, 28th August, at 11 o'clock,
The above described BLOCKS OF LAND, Kingston, Newtown.
They are only a few yards from the Railway Station, and close to the 'BUS STAND, NEWTOWN.
To be offered in lots to suit purchasers.
Plan at the Rooms.
Terms at sale.

ANNUAL SALE of the MOUNT DERRIMUT SHORT-HORN BULLS
of the unrivalled BATES on BUTTERFLY BLOOD.

DALMAHOY CAMPBELL and CO. have been favoured with instructions from the well-known breeder Mr. Richard Morton, of Mount Derrimut, to sell by public auction (through their auctioneer), at Kirk's Bazaar, Bourke-street, on TUESDAY, the 24th October next, at noon,
5 prime young bulls, 13 months old, of great promise, four of them being got by his imported bull "Duke of Brunswick" (25937), out of Butterfly cows, from imported stock on both sides.

The agents have much pleasure in calling the attention of breeders to this sale, and have full confidence that these bulls, as a lot, will be found superior to anything ever offered for sale out of England; as a proof of which, and to show that the Bates on Butterfly blood is highly appreciated it may be stated that four of the "Duke's" calves, from 4 to 11 months old, have already passed into the hands of some of the very best judges of stock here, at the high average of £237 10s. each. The sale will, as usual, be without the slightest reserve, except upon one animal, viz., "Duke of Derrimut," for which his breeder reserves the right to make one bid.

Catalogues of pedigrees and full particulars can be obtained on application, to the Agents, 66, Queen-street; or to Mr. MORTON, at Mount Derrimut, Maidstone.

TUESDAY, August 22nd.

PEVERIL, CUTTER.

To those engaged in the South Sea Islands, Fiji, Pearl Fishery, and other trades generally, requiring the services of a first-class British-built Cutter.

H. A. COFFEY has received instructions to sell by auction, THIS DAY, 22nd August, at the Melbourne Shipping Exchange, Collins-street West, Melbourne, at 12 noon,
The Peveril, cutter.
This vessel is now in the market for sale, having been long and favourably known in the Western trade from this port to Warrnambool. It is an established fact that she has carried her cargoes as reliably and with very nearly the regularity of the steamers engaged in the same trade. She is 59 tons register, carries 100 tons general cargo, is now in first-class order, has been re-metalled twelve months since, caulked, and has undergone a thorough refit as to masts, sails, and rigging.
Her dimensions are—Length, 57 feet, breadth 19 feet, depth 10 feet.
